Beer Baron Slain in Underworld Squabble

THREE SHOTS END CONFERENCE HELD IN FLOWER SHOP

Dion O'Bannon Is Victim of Unidentified Foes He Greeted With "Hello Boys."

ARREST 3 BROTHERS KNOWN AS ENEMIES

Police Seek Four Other Gangsters in Connection With Killing—Slayers Fled in Auto.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Chicago, November 10.—Dion O'Bannon, notorious Chicago gangster and often termed "King of the beer runners," was shot and killed by three unidentified men today when, amid the quiet respectability of his florist shop, he was shot and killed by three unidentified men.

Tonight the three Miller brothers, Herschie, Max and David, all sworn enemies of O'Bannon, were under arrest. They surrendered voluntarily. Herschie is the owner of a cleaning and dyeing plant which was twice bombed sometime ago after an attempt had been made on the lives of Herschie and Max in front of a downtown theater. O'Bannon was accused in both instances, but the assault charge was the only one to reach court and this only reached the status of a police court arraignment. David Miller is a prominent boxing referee in the middle west.

Orders were dispatched immediately after the shooting for the arrest of Earl Weiss, Johnnie Torrio, "Yankee" Schwartz and "Dapper Dan" McCarthy, all of whom have been involved in hijacking and beer running scandals in the past few years and all of whom have been arrested in connection with recent beer slayings.

O'Bannon was working among his plants and blooms in his northside shop shortly before noon when three men entered. In the rear of the place was William Critchfield, negro porter, and in an anteroom Victor Young, manager, and Vincent Galvin, bookkeeper.

O'Bannon greeted his callers with "Hello, boys!" Then, according to Critchfield, who was taken into custody tonight for questioning, the four walked over a counter to the room and conversed in low undertones. This continued only a minute, being cut short by the simultaneous firing of three revolvers. O'Bannon fell over into a bed of roses, where the porter and the other two employees found him dead.

The trio fled, running two or three blocks to a waiting automobile. Many pedestrians saw the men running and later were able to describe them, but none attempted to stop them as the report of the shots was not heard in the street.

The police tonight stated that it was their belief that O'Bannon was shot as the result of an underworld feud. They were, however, also working on theories that the shooting may have been another in the series of beer war slayings or that it may have been the culmination of O'Bannon's efforts in behalf of certain candidates on election day when several workers for the opposition party were kidnapped and held prisoner several hours.

At the detective bureau tonight Herschie Miller explained that "I

Officers Named. Jobs Abolished At Same Election

Unique Political Situation in White County Revealed in Returns.

A unique political complex is revealed in White County as the result of the receiving by Secretary of State McLeaden of the official ballots for the general election.

In this particular county, the voters were privileged to vote for a judge of the city court as well as for a solicitor of the city court. Then the question of "for the city court" and "against the city court" was placed before the voters.

The official tabulation shows that the candidates for these two offices were elected, but that the question of the city court was defeated. Therefore, although the candidates were elected to their respective offices, they found by the counting of the votes that they had no office in which to serve.

The official vote is shown as follows: Judge of city court, W. H. Underwood, 429 votes; solicitor of city court, Thomas F. Underwood, 437 votes.

For city court, 187 votes; against city court, 437 votes.

At least two candidates have found out that, although duly elected, they cannot serve.

CHEST DONATIONS REACH $430,026; $795,000 IS GOAL

Campaign Certain To Be Extended Past Wednesday If Budget Is Not Raised, Says Black

Indications that the Community Chest campaign may last through the remainder of this week and that it certainly will go beyond Wednesday, if the entire budget of $795,000 is not raised by Wednesday night, were given Monday by General Chairman Eugene R. Black at the first daily report luncheon of the week in the Kimball House headquarters.

Mr. Black released all stop cards on prospects held by the special committee as its list of big givers, telling the campaigners to "go to it."

"Also, I want you to pay no further attention to your prospect cards," said Mr. Black, talking to members of the four sections commanded by Robert L. Foreman. "These four sections are led by Julian Beulin, Charles N. Walker, Roy LeCraw and Fred Gould, and are working in the four geographical quarters into which the area of Atlanta has been divided."

"Each section must stay in its own territory through Wednesday," said Mr. Black. "We are going to hold to the plan of campaign originally scheduled, and give W. W. Orr's big

COOLIDGE FROWNS ON PLAN FOR POMP

Simple Inaugural To Be Unique When Ex-President Administers Oath of Office.

Washington, November 10.—President Coolidge is expected to stand against pressure for ornate inaugural ceremonies and to order his induction into office to be simple in every respect.

There is already talk here about the inauguration, and it is apparent that an effort will be made to restore the old-time elaborate ceremonies which were called off four years ago by Harding, when plans for an ostentatious ceremony were criticized in congress.

But Coolidge is expected to stand against any such attempt. It is contrary to his nature. He, personally, is inclined toward simplicity in such matters. The death of his son only a few months ago will also have its effect.

6TH ANNIVERSARY OF ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATED TODAY

Major General O'Ryan, of New York, Will Be Chief Speaker at Main Exercises Tonight.

FLAG PRESENTED CITY TO FLY AT FIVE POINTS

500 Women and Girls Will Sell Poppies to Relieve Distress of World War Veterans.

Six years ago the armistice was signed and today Atlanta, with the rest of the nation, will pause to honor the memories of the men who lost their lives in the great conflict, and to celebrate the victory that restored peace to the world.

The spirit of Armistice day will be carried out here with fitting exercises. Prominent speakers will address several different gatherings. Among these of chief interest will be the address of Major General John F. O'Ryan, war hero and statesman, who comes here from New York under auspices of the local post of the American Legion and the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs.

General O'Ryan will speak at the Baptist Tabernacle this evening at 7:45 o'clock, and arrangements to accommodate a capacity crowd have been made. Seats will be reserved for members of the legion, all ex-service men and for other patriotic groups and civic bodies.

Arrive This Afternoon.

General O'Ryan was decorated by France, Great Britain and Belgium for his valorous service in the world war. He will be accompanied to Atlanta by his daughter, Miss Dorothy O'Ryan. They will arrive this afternoon at 5 o'clock from New York. A large committee from the American Legion and the club federation will meet at the Brookwood station.

Other prominent speakers at the mass meeting in the tabernacle will be Governor Clifford Walker, Mayor Walter Sims, J. E. Conyers, commander of the Argonne post, American Legion; Dr. Ben Lyons and General.

REWARD OFFERED FOR 3 SLAYERS

Sheriff of Milton County Here to Search for Men Who Killed Officer Webb.

Renewed impetus was given Monday to the search for the liquor-runners who Friday night shot and clubbed Special Officer A. J. Webb, of Milton county, to death and left his companion, County Policeman Verd Elson, for dead on the highway near Holcomb bridge in Gwinnett county.

Governor Clifford Walker announced a reward of $250 each for three of the slayers' group. Officers who have been pushing the search for the slayers believe that announcement of the reward will bring immediate results.

Sheriff A. W. Smith, of Milton county, came to Atlanta again Monday and spent hours driving about the known haunts of liquor-runners and bootleggers. He disclosed to newspaper men that he is operating on clues that he had not heretofore been revealed in the case.

"I was on the highway north of Holcomb bridge Friday night and am confident that I saw the men who later killed Officer Webb," said Sheriff Smith. "I was driving north when I met a car in which two men and two dogs were going toward Holcomb bridge."

"Another car had just turned into the Holcomb bridge road before I came into this road. I stopped the car that had not reached the road's fork. I suspected that they had killed Officer Webb. I searched the machine. They drove away at a high rate of speed when I permitted them to go."

Sheriff Smith said he is confident that the car about the one he stopped contained liquor, and that it was one or both of these cars to which Officers Elson and Webb gave chase a few minutes later. He said he could identify the two men he stopped, and that he would recognize the car they were driving.

Fortune Smiles, Then Renigs On Babe Who Has No Name

TOT IS PAWN IN INHERITANCE SCRAMBLE

BY LYLE C. WILSON. New York, November 10.—Pillowing a fuzzy head in the arms of his nurse a tiny, pink-toed baby squealed and giggled in a New York courtroom Monday while affidavits were read that proved him to be an innocent but wholly spurious heir pretender to the fortune of Arthur Hudson Marks, millionaire manufacturer of organs and automobile tires.

After a brief moment as a son of wealth the infant is going back to his numbered cot in Willow sanitarium in Kansas City, where he was contentedly kicking his heels when a pretty lady came along and picked him out of all the crowing youngsters in the home for adoption.

That the pretty lady was the divorced wife of Arthur Hudson Marks didn't make any difference to the "foundling" as he is called. In the amazing other phenomena in the amazing course of his career which had been progressing, when the pretty lady appeared, for nearly three months. If opportunity knocked but once, the rat-tat-tat on the foundling's door came at an unfair moment. He was in no condition even to shout "son of mine" as he was taken to the home where there is a grade school education for everyone and a chewing interest on an occasional lollipop when times are good.

The baby's chances faded Monday when the pretty lady read affidavits proving that Mrs. Marks, who

CONGRESS FACES URGES FOR REPEAL OF TAX PUBLICITY

Treasury to Recommend Repeal of Section But Demands Clarification of Statute.

WASHINGTON, November 10.—Congress will be asked by the treasury in the forthcoming short session either to repeal or to make clear provisions of the tax laws relating to publication of income tax returns.

Although the publicity provisions in the present law are to be left by Attorney General Stong for judicial interpretation, the treasury, it was said today, feels that the reaction since the recent publication of returns has been of such a character as to show conclusively that the country is opposed to such publication.

A repeal of the provisions is not possible then the treasury proposes that definite legislation be enacted to clarify the law. The bill would be introduced early in the session looking to a repeal of the publicity sections.

The reaction on the recent publication of returns has been distinctly unfavorable to a continuation of that policy, according to treasury officials who base their view on thousands of letters from taxpayers discussing the question. Many of the writers, not knowing the terms of the law, placed responsibility for publication of the figures on the treasury itself but the secretary said that a great majority of the protests received contained legitimate arguments against continuation of the publicity features in the law.

Bruised Broadway Butterfly Scents Million as Her Balm

EDITH BOBE CAPITALIZES HOLD-UP PUBLICITY

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER. Hamilton, Bermuda, November 10. Edith Bobe, Broadway's little village seamstress, who recently was robbed of enough jewel to light up a county fair all the way from the butter and eggs building right down the line to the Streets of Cairo, is returning to New York after a ten days' visit to Bermuda, intending to make New York her home.

Edith lost two teeth when an unidentified and as yet unquoted youth took a slant at her in the foyer of her home on East Sixty-third street as a preliminary to absconding with her jewels. She values them roughly at half a million each.

"Now, look here," Bobe said as she jumped up and down on the lid of a patent leather trunk in her apartment at the Poinciana, overlooking the tropical Atlantic. "Come here to Bermuda. Sit here beside Princess. And listen, brother, to what Princess has to say."

LAWYERS IN HILL TEST OF DRY ACT IN HOT WRANGLE

Definition of Intoxication Starts Legal Debate as Prosecutor Quotes "Letter of the Law."

GOVERNMENT RESTS CASE AS SURPRISE

Two Federal Chemists Testify as To Alcoholic Content in Congressman's Grape Juice.

Baltimore, Md., November 10.—Jurors and witnesses in the government's case against Representative John Philip Hill, of Baltimore, charged with violating the Volstead act, were dismissed today Monday until Tuesday morning, while the lawyers argued a legal point involving the ability to intoxicate. This point will vitally affect the verdict.

The question was raised by United States Attorney Amos W. Woodcock as soon as J. McGinnity, the first witness for the defense, began his testimony. Questioned by Arthur W. Maclean, Representative Hill's counsel, Hill's attorney said the jury should be asked to decide whether the defendant was intoxicated.

Maclean asked him if he saw any drunkenness, and Woodcock objected. "Whether there was any drunkenness or not is irrelevant. If the defendant contained more than one-half per cent alcohol, it was, from a legal standpoint, intoxicating and in violation of the law."

United States Judge Morris Soper dismissed the jury so this point could be argued.

The government sprang a surprise by closing its side of the case after two minor witnesses had testified. Lawyers said the United States attorney's move was a strategic one to have the defense present its case first.

The prosecuting witnesses were chemists who analyzed the grape juice. The government scored first when George F. Beyer, internal revenue chemist, was allowed to testify that the grape juice he analyzed in Hill's case in September, 1923, was wine.

The testimony was admitted over objection of Hill's attorney, who claimed

COMMISSIONER'S ACT IS CALLED 'JOKE'

Perry Raps State Public Service Body for Sending Secretary to Convention in Arizona.

Characterizing the commission's action as "a junk and a joke, with a useless expense to which every citizen of Georgia is forced to contribute," Commissioner James A. Perry of Georgia public service commission today filed a dissenting opinion with the commission, giving his reasons for objecting to the action of other members in sending the secretary of the commission to the convention of the National Association of Railway and Utility Commissioners, at Phoenix, Ariz., November 11 to 14.

Mr. Perry's motion to send the rate expert and the chairman of the commission as representatives from Georgia was defeated, and a substitute motion adopted which provided that the secretary, together with any member of the commission who desired to go, should attend the convention.

The first objection of Commissioner Perry to the secretary's attendance was that almost the entire time of the convention is taken up with technical questions relating to rate and service, and "dealing with subjects with which the secretary is without the slightest knowledge or information."

Commissioner Perry, in his dissenting opinion, pointed out that the rate expert is the only qualified combination railroad and utility rate expert in the state of Georgia, whereas "the duties of the secretary of the commission are of a nature that can be discharged by any stenographer of average efficiency, after a week or ten days' opportunity to familiarize himself or herself with the files and routine of the work in the office."

Selection of the secretary, Commissioner Perry said, is one of the rules of the association, under which the secretary is allowed to vote, whereas the rate expert is not.

Butchered Body Of Girl Found; Boarder Is Held

Head Almost Severed; Work of Degenerate, Says Coroner.

Chicago, November 10.—The apparent victim of a brutal slaying, the body of a 14-year-old girl was found lying in a lonely prairie near East Chicago, Ind., early today, the head almost severed and the clothing torn from the body.

The girl, Frances Guazza, of East Chicago, daughter of a well-to-do family and the eldest of five children, disappeared yesterday after starting for the home of some girl friends.

Her body was found by a man on his way to work.

Frank Townsley, coroner's physician, said that the girl's tongue had been torn out and that she undoubtedly was the victim of a degenerate.

The mother is in a critical condition tonight.

Police dogs, given the scent of a man's handkerchief, found near the body, led the officers to the negro district, but the police refused to say if anyone had been arrested as a result of this information.

Later the police arrested John Gorkis, a roomer at the girl's home.

Gorkis cannot speak English and is being held tonight for questioning through an interpreter.

Jury's Action in Futures Case May Drive Large Firms to Other Cities of South in Self Protection.

BY CLARK W. BOOTH.

The future of Atlanta as a leading spot cotton market; the strategic point for the distribution of cotton to the mills of the southeast; the great financial center of the south—seems imperiled, according to the consensus of opinion of leading business men, bankers and financiers of the city, who Monday sensed this possibility on the eve of the grand jury investigation into the matter of what is known to the cotton and stock trade as "trading in futures on margin."

This investigation follows the raid made Saturday on the Atlanta Commercial exchange, an organization composed of the leading men in cotton, grain, cottonseed oil business of Atlanta and on representatives of the various large cotton, grain and stock houses of the United States, and on branch offices of other cotton stock and brokers equally as important.

That the raid has brought a great feeling of resentment toward those who engineered it was shown two hours after its culmination when the representatives of these interests met and condemned in no uncertain manner the methods of the raid, which were described as "high-handed" and "in utter disregard of the rights of the members of the Atlanta Commercial exchange."

That those who trade in cotton, grain, stocks, etc., and who claim their rights to do so have been imperiled will wage a fight against being torn out of business in Atlanta was shown Monday with the arrival from New Orleans of Charles E. Finner, head of Finner & Beane and formerly a member of the board of directors of the New Orleans Cotton exchange; and with the preparation by counsel of the numerous firms for the issue.

Atlanta To Lose.

It is not these firms, however, who will lose should the law in Georgia governing trading in futures on margin be enforced to the letter; neither will the large spot houses located here be the big losers, for they can move to Charlotte, N. C., or New Orleans, La. The opinion expressed, and an opinion that can be readily seen as an absolute fact, is that Atlanta will lose.

Should the privilege of "hedging" the futures market, the only method by which spot houses and mills can protect themselves against losses, be removed from those firms who are located in Atlanta or Georgia, the only

METHODS OF RAID STAGED SATURDAY RAPPED IN PETITION

Immediate Investigation of Conduct of Market Quotations Requested by 40 Exchange Members.

BOYKIN WILL SEEK TO GET INDICTMENTS

More Than 100 Witnesses Summoned To Appear Today Before Grand Jury in Probe.

Deploping the methods pursued by deputies in a raid on the Atlanta Commercial Exchange Saturday, 40 individual members of the exchange Monday formally petitioned the Fulton county grand jury to investigate immediately the conduct of its market quotations for the purpose of establishing what, if anything, warranted the invasion of its premises and the alleged rough handling of its members and employees.

The petition charged that vital business had been brought to a complete halt during a most critical period in the market, and asserted that the grand jury owed it to the business interests of Atlanta to "make a thorough investigation and publish its findings." The paper was formally presented to G. Frank Beck, foreman of the grand jury, by J. Hope Tigner, secretary of the Atlanta Commercial exchange.

Purpose of Exchange.

The petitioners set out that they were manufacturers and merchants, dealing in cotton, grain and other farm commodities, and described the exchange as an organization for the promotion and proper supervision of such business. An immense amount of capital is invested by the firms dealing in cotton and like products, and the business of many of the largest firms in this country is in jeopardy, the petition set out.

Atlanta's leading business men, who "officer and direct, and through their subscriptions maintain the Atlanta Commercial exchange, have been held up to disgrace throughout the country through the implication which this raid casts upon their connection with an organization subjected to such treatment," the petition declared.

The grand jurors were asked to make a thorough investigation of the exchange immediately. What action will be taken was not known Monday night, but it is expected the grand jury will take the matter up at its regular session this morning.

Boykin to Seek Indictments.

Monday Solicitor General John A. Boykin, under whose direction the raid on the exchange was made, was busy throughout the day interviewing witnesses in preparation for the session of the grand jury today. The solicitor will seek indictments against several exchange brokers who were arrested in the series of raids Saturday. They are charged with violating the Georgia state law governing the buying and selling of cotton futures.

Solicitor Boykin declared he had ample evidence that the Atlanta Com-mercantile exchange had violated the Georgia law, charging that actual stock transactions had been handled by the exchange.

The grand jury will take up the matter today, hearing more than 100 witnesses who have been summoned by the grand jury to appear before the body. Records and tickets taken from some of the offices will be exhibited, and all persons found in these offices will be questioned by the grand jury.

Petition of Members.

The petition of the exchange members, to the grand jury follows:

"November 10, 1924.

"To the Grand Jury of Fulton County, State of Georgia:

"We, the undersigned manufacturers of, and merchants dealing in, the buying and selling of farm products in Atlanta—cotton, cottonseed oil products, grain, hay, provisions, fertilizers and similar commodities—and, as such, being members of the Atlanta Commercial exchange, an organization for the promotion and proper supervision of such business, do petition your honorable body that a committee therefrom at once investigate, in every way, this Atlanta Commercial exchange, to establish what, if any, conduct of its market quotation service, or other services, conducted on its floor by its officers and employees is, or can be, unlawful, so as to warrant the invasion of its premises, the rough handling of its members and employees, engaged as they were in the peaceful pursuit of their business, and the absolute stoppage of its commercial business for a period of 30 minutes at a critical period in the market, as was experienced on Saturday, November 8, at the hands of persons representing the office of the prosecuting attorney.

Essential to Business.

"We are members of the Atlanta Commercial exchange because through it alone, in this section, are obtained and recorded the necessary price quotations, and through its system of committees is obtained the proper supervision over, and control of, the sale and arbitrage of the commodities of the farm commodities in which we, as members, deal.

After a period of thorough investigation by the United States department of agriculture into its methods of conducting business, the Atlanta Commercial exchange obtained for Atlanta, in competition with other cities, about two years ago, from the secretary of agriculture of the United States, the appointment as one of the 12 designated spot markets of the United States department of agriculture, which is a much coveted appointment. An assistant chief of the marketing bureau, department of agriculture (Mr. E. H. Caster) has his office in the building and gives his constant daily supervision to the conduct of the business of the Atlanta Commercial exchange. The superintendent of the exchange reports daily to the department of agriculture as to the business of that day.

Compress Company Organized.

"There has been recently reorganized, with a large amount of capital, a compress and storage plant system for bringing cotton and all farm products to Atlanta. Who would want to store commodities there, we ask, when the official and organized exchange for collecting and displaying of quotations by which the sales of such commodities are controlled is liable to seizure and the stoppage of its business and the disgrace and reflection of such a raid?

"An immense amount of capital is invested by the firms dealing in cotton and products of its seed, in grain, fertilizers, the manufacturing of cotton, flour and other interests, on whom a serious stigma has been cast in the eyes of the business world of this country by reason of this raid, which it may take years to overcome.

"The business of many of the largest firms in this country dealing in farm products has been placed in jeopardy, and the members of these firms, among Atlanta's leading business men, who officer and direct and through subscriptions maintain this Atlanta Commercial exchange, have been held up to disgrace throughout this country through the implication which this raid casts upon their connection with an organization subjected to such treatment.

Banks Are Members.

"The banks of Atlanta are members of the Atlanta Commercial exchange, so as to have its quotations and records for their information in checking the value of commodity loans and collateral. The insurance companies use the services of the Atlanta Commercial exchange and their records for checking claims for fire losses, frequently seeking information several years old, which they cannot obtain elsewhere. We refer you to any of these banks or insurance companies in corroboration of this statement.

"The above information is laid before your honorable body that you may see the enormous and far-reaching effect in the business world of this handling of an organization of business men, whose connections and whose own business houses are established throughout the south and the east, and cities abroad, that your honorable body may appreciate the reasons why we desire a full and immediate investigation at your hands, and we do pray an immediate granting of this request for this full investigation.

Probe Due to Atlanta.

"We believe that you owe it to Atlanta, its business interests, its position of prominence in farm commodities, by reason of this Atlanta Commercial exchange as a factor in the distribution of all information on farm products and the facilities for their handling, to make a thorough investigation and publish your findings, and we do so pray.

ATLANTA'S FUTURE HANGS IN BALANCE

course left to these houses, it is stated, is to move from the state to adjoining states where no such legislation is in effect.

Great strides have been taken in the last few years in the building up of Atlanta as a great interior cotton city. The world's two largest spot cotton houses have offices in this city, one of them only recently moving its southeastern headquarters to Atlanta because of the geographical position, which will enable firms to do business with the mills and growers at the least possible cost and in the least possible time. Other large firms have established offices in this city, until Atlanta at present houses either branch offices or southeastern headquarters of firms of international importance as Anderson, Clayton & Co., George H. McFadden & Bro., Williamson, Inman & Co., Weatherford, Crump & Co., and numerous others.

Atlanta like Memphis, New Orleans, Houston and other big cotton centers boasts of an organization which represents the leading men in the cotton, stock, grain, cottonseed oil and kindred industries. In Atlanta it is the Atlanta Commercial exchange, headed by Robert A. Smythe and composed of leading business men of the city, an institution that has grown by leaps and bounds and which has helped to put Atlanta in the front as a cotton center.

Leading Firms Here.

The leading stock, cotton and grain houses of the United States have either branch offices in this city or have representatives who solicit business in this city.

The Atlanta Commercial exchange furthermore has been trying for the last two years to induce the government to designate Atlanta as a point of delivery for cotton, which would mean the bringing of an enormous amount of business to this city.

All of the above things have tended to place Atlanta in the foreground as one of the biggest cotton markets in the country, and if the grand jury investigation should declare that the law was being violated by the cotton, stock, grain and kindred firms doing business in Atlanta and the final outcome should be a ruling in favor of the law, these firms would have to leave Atlanta, going to Charlotte, Birmingham or New Orleans, and the prestige that Atlanta has earned for itself would be lost. Not only this, but there would be taken from the city some of its most outstanding citizens, men who in the past years have helped to make Atlanta the great cotton point, it is today.

Cotton Trade Praised.

As to trading in futures on margin, the chairman of the federal trade commission, following general investigation of the cotton trade ordered by congress declared that "A spirit of generosity and fairness prevails the cotton trade and causes it to stand out in marked contrast with most other businesses," and further remarked that the commission was impressed with the unanimity of opinion that the existing future contract is satisfactory. The futures contract is used on the New York and the New Orleans Cotton exchanges under the provisions of the United States futures act.

The spot cotton firms and mills cannot safely operate without one feature of cotton trading known as "hedging." To the laymen this term may be described as using a contract for future delivery as a hedge against adverse effects of price fluctuations, or to fix a more or less permanent difference or margin of profit or loss, on some other transaction. The other transaction must have been of opposite character to that of the hedge.

The spot cotton merchant, for instance, purchases spot cotton and then "hedges" by a temporary sale of future contracts, or a sale of spot cotton for deferred delivery may be hedged by a temporary purchase of future contracts. The mill man may sell his goods for a later delivery, the transaction being protected by the mill man going into the futures market and purchasing a futures contract in like manner the piling up of unsold products in a bad market may be offset by the sale in the futures market of a like amount of the same kind of cotton. This system of hedging is the only protection the spot man and the mill man have the loss on one side being offset by the gain on the other.

The cotton futures market, further, it has been found, is the only agency that can stabilize the price of cotton. Sale and purchases and bids and asks bring about a mean price, and it is this price that the mill, the spot man and the farmer go by. During the war the exchanges were closed to the utter confusion of the trade in general, as no set price could be had, and there were many prices in many different parts of the country for the staple.

Buying Canned Foods

As a rule canned foods are all good in their particular class, but there are different grades and qualities, each having its own value accordingly, and there are times when the consumer who buys on price alone will not get the best in food values as there are many who do not know at the time of original purchase just what quality of grade is in the package.

We make a strong effort to see that the lines we offer to our trade are of the very best grade always, and with more than forty years of experience in handling foods we feel that we are competent to judge the qualities as we purchase for you.

$41,269.73 LOSS IN CAR RECEIPTS

With a decrease in receipts for the month of October amounting to $41,269.73, as compared with the same month last year, the Georgia Railway and Power company issued a statement Monday declaring it had suffered heavy losses in street railway receipts for the fourth successive month this year.

It is pointed out that this is the largest decrease in revenue of any month this year with the exception of September, when the loss amounted to $47,000.48.

Following is the company's statement made public Monday:

"For the fourth consecutive month receipts of the street railway have shown heavy losses as compared with the figures for 1923, the loss for October amounting to $41,269.73. This is the largest decrease in revenues of any month this year with the exception of September, when the loss amounted to $47,000.48.

"With $38,779.59 for July on the wrong side of the ledger and $35,904.48 for August, revenue of the street railway for the past four months are now $162,954.08 under those for the same period in 1923, and it will be recalled that the street railway failed by more than $565,000 in 1922 and by over $580,000 in 1923 to earn the amount fixed by the state public service commission as a fair return on the commission's minimum valuation of the property.

"We again call the attention of the public to the petition before city council asking that steps be taken to put the street railway on a self-sustaining basis. The figures for the past four months should be convincing proof of the statements contained in the petition and made by our officials at the public hearings last January that unless relief is given it will be impossible to continue the street car service."

Warmer Weather Forecast Today; Cold Wave Gone

Although Atlantans were given a bone-chilling touch of winter Monday, today will be warmer, and if there is a cold wave of any sort or description on its way toward Atlanta, it is still some distance away, according to C. F. von Herrmann, in charge of the United States weather bureau here.

Starting shortly after noon Monday, the temperature rose gradually, and today will begin a continuation of the exceptionally fine weather that has marked the entire fall, Mr. von Herrmann said. Although rain threatened all day Monday, today's forecast shows fair weather in the offing. Records show that only one day's rain has fallen since September 29, and that precipitation since that time has been only .90 of an inch.

The mercury dropped rapidly Sunday night, falling from 70 degrees at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon to 47 degrees at 5 o'clock Monday morning, the coldest temperature recorded during the day. It rose to 54 degrees at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon, making a mean temperature of 50 degrees for the day.

Although Monday was unusually cold in comparison with the past few weeks, and was four degrees colder than normal, it was much warmer than the same date for the past two years. On November 10, 1923, the thermometer registered 36 degrees, while it showed 34 degrees on the same date in 1922.

Atlanta has not experienced a killing frost this year. Mr. von Herrmann stated, the heaviest frost having been October 1. The first killing frost last year came November 9, when the temperature was 32 degrees. In 1922 it came on November 21.

Although continuance of warm, clear weather is expected here, tropical storms have been reported in South Atlantic waters, and shippers have been warned to use caution because of the disturbance. The storm is moving northward and north-eastward.

SPECIAL DRIVE MADE TO GET PENSION TAX

Representatives of the pension and the revenue departments of Georgia will meet Wednesday for the purpose of discussing plans for active cooperation between the two departments in an effort to pay a special Christmas pension to Confederate veterans, it was announced Monday.

Revenue Commissioner John Vandiver stated that his revenue agents were operating with redoubled energy in a drive for 100 per cent collections on the new tobacco tax. All tobacco tax money collected during the rest of this year, together with more than $200,000 already collected, will go toward paying Confederate pensions.

Former Governor Nat E. Harris, newly-inaugurated pension commissioner, asserted all possible efforts were being made to put through a special pension payment this year, but that such a payment is not at all certain.

RETURNS MISSING FROM 9 COUNTIES

Druggists from all sections of Georgia, numbering about 200, arrived in Atlanta Monday to attend the annual convention of "Rexallies," which convenes at 8:30 o'clock this morning on the roof garden of the Ansley hotel for a two-day session.

A distinctive feature of the convention is a display of drugs and notions that has been arranged in attractive designs on the hotel roof. Business sessions will feature the first day's conference, followed by a round-table discussion at a dinner tonight.

WATCHMAN BEATS NEGRO WHO HIT HIM WITH SHOVEL

J. W. McGouirk, 25, of 324 Angier avenue, night watchman for the MacDougald Construction company, of 315 Angier avenue, being attacked early Monday night in the boiler room of the plant by Robert Jamison, 30-year-old negro, of 436 Glenn street, and hit several blows with a shovel, turned on the negro and beat him into a state of insensibility with a large chunk of coal, according to police.

The night watchman said that when he entered the boiler room, he found the negro there. McGouirk asked what his business was, whereupon the negro picked up a shovel from the floor and attacked him, he said. McGouirk warded off most of the blows, until he could reach for the lump of coal with which he hit his assailant until he was unconscious. The watchman was not injured in the encounter.

The negro was carried to Grady hospital, where his injuries were treated and later taken to police station and held for further investigation.

Mississippi is to be invited to become a controlling synod with an invitation to be extended later to other synods, it is understood.

GOVERNOR WALKER SEEKS ADJUSTMENT OF TAX SHORTAGE

Governor Walker had before him Monday afternoon the case of S. B. Griner, tax collector of Berrien county, whose accounts are alleged to have shown a shortage of $10,000, and whose removal from office was asked in a petition filed with the governor by citizens of Berrien county.

Governor Walker stated following the hearing that he had conferred with Comptroller General William A. Wright regarding the case, with the purpose of adjusting the matter.

A criminal prosecution has been started against the tax collector. He is represented by Attorneys J. H. Gary and Arlie Tucker, of Nashville, Ga.

ASK WALKER TO SPEED EXTRADITION OF WEBB

A request that Governor Walker give immediate consideration to the request of Governor Hardee, of Florida, for extradition of L. O. Webb, former chief of police for the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, who was captured last week in Macon and is wanted for alleged participation in the robbery of the American Express company's office at High Springs, Fla., last May, was made Monday by Attorney Blair Foster, representing the express company.

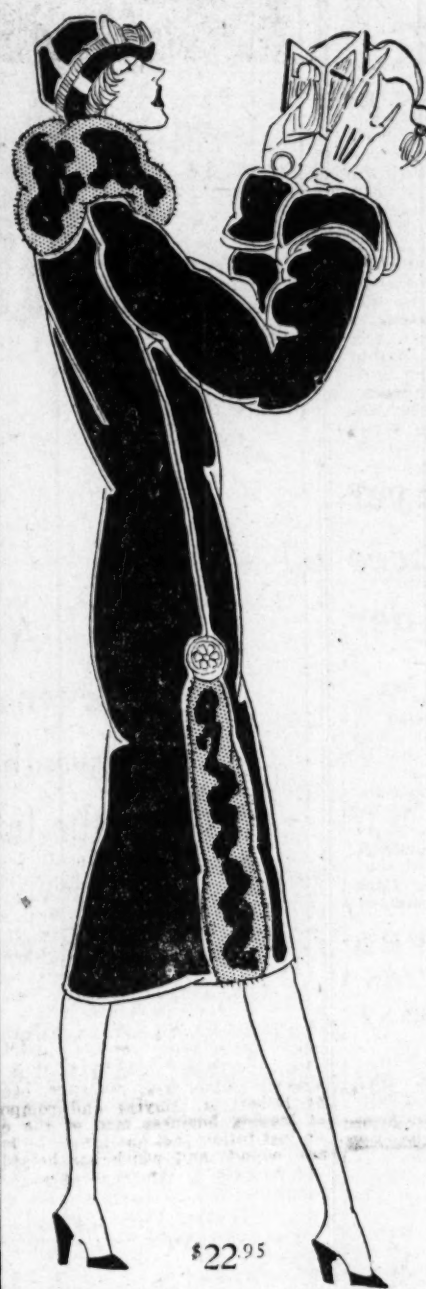

T. E. Nott, former claim agent of the road, was also implicated in a confession made by John McDonald, of Tampa, after McDonald had been convicted of staging the actual robbery. Webb, according to McDonald's confession, was the ringleader of the hold-up gang.

TROOPS' ARRIVAL STOPS RACE RIOT

Harrodsburg, Ky., November 10.—After a night of disorder, quiet had been restored tonight in the construction camps that flank the site of the Dix river dam, a huge hydro-electric project under construction of Dix river near here.

Arrival of detachments of Kentucky national guardsmen brought an end to clashes between white construction workers and negroes on one side and negro workers at the dam which followed the slaying of Edward Winkle, 21, white worker, by a negro laborer Sunday night.

Sheriff W. Kennedy, of Mercer county, tonight said the situation no longer was tense and further trouble was not expected.

Clashes followed rapidly Sunday night and early today resulting in a general exodus of negroes from the labor camps.

Quiet was restored when 35 members of Troop A, 54th machine gun squadron, national guard, arrived in motor trucks and assumed charge of the situation.

Nearly 300 of the 700 negroes employed on the dam, and driven from the camp, returned after arrival of the troops.

They came wandering back to the camp in groups of half dozen or more. All showed effects of exposure. Many were without shoes, none were fully dressed and a number were without trousers.

Georgia Planter Is Found Dead Of Pistol Wound

Tallahassee, Ga., November 10.—(Special)—A bullet hole in his left breast and a pistol clamped in his right hand led officers to believe that Dave Phillips, 36, farmer, of Waco, had ended his own life when his body was found in his home Monday afternoon.

Phillips recently had sold his farm and bought a store at Kansas, a small station near Waco. He has aroused attention by strange actions during the last week, and he had been under the care of physicians and friends for several days.

Phillips is survived by his wife and several grown children.

Dentists Urged To Tell Public Their Message

Dallas, Texas, November 10.—(By The Associated Press)—Dentists of America should provide the American people constructive information on dental hygiene and disease prevention, Dr. W. A. Giffin, of Detroit, president of the American Dental association, told the association's house of delegates here today.

The association opened its sixty-sixth annual session with more than 2,500 delegates in attendance, the meeting to continue through Friday.

Dr. Giffin made several other important recommendations, among them being that by education, the people should be taught the need of dental hygiene and that by demanding the best, the standard of dental service will be improved.

He emphasized that the delegates from several states should concentrate their attention upon a policy of centralization of administrative policy and to this end recommended that a business manager be appointed to relieve the national secretary of some of his duties.

Of the 190 members of the house of delegates, appointed by the several state associations, 168 attended the opening session. These delegates transacted the business of the national organization, which now has a membership of approximately 37,000 dentists.

See Million-Dollar Exhibit.

Today was devoted chiefly to organization of the seven scientific study groups in which other dentists in attendance will participate. The first general session of the convention will be held tomorrow morning, when the official addresses of welcome will be delivered.

Dr. Giffin will make his annual report to the membership.

In conjunction with the regular convention, firms represented in the American Dental Trades association are conducting an exhibit of materials and equipment used by dentists. Officials in charge say that the exhibit is valued at $1,000,000.

The report for 1924 of Dr. Arthur R. Melendy, of Knoxville, Tenn., submitted to the house of delegates, showed receipts of $280,620.44, disbursements of $253,603.85 and a balance on hand of $27,016.59.

Eight persons were in the car and two other children, Annie and Irene Brown, were seriously injured. Other occupants suffered bruises but none is thought to be seriously hurt. WOULD UPHOLD POWER OF SENATE PROBERS

Washington, November 10.—Former Attorney General George W. Wickersham filed in the supreme court today the brief as counsel for the government in the case brought against M. S. Daugherty to test the power of the senate to summon witnesses and compel them to produce books.

Each house of congress has the power, Mr. Wickersham contended, to conduct investigations in aid of its legislative functions and to compel the attendance before it of witnesses and the production of books and papers which might throw light upon the subject under inquiry. This power, he said, is subject to protection against invasion by unreasonable searches and seizures, self-incrimination and such rights. The investigation ordered by the senate, he said, in the course of which the testimony of Daugherty and the production of books and records of the Midland National Bank of Washington Courthouse, Ohio, of which he was president, were required, was legislative in character and strictly within the authority of a congressional committee.

Daugherty by refusing to appear in response to the subpoena could only

HEARINGS STARTED ON RED RIVER LEASES

Washington, November 10.—Hearings on the applications of several corporations and individuals for permits and leases involving millions of dollars in the south half of the Red river oil field in Oklahoma opened today before Secretary Work and Solicitor John H. Edwards, of the interior department. After a brief session the hearing was adjourned until Wednesday.

Briefs were filed in behalf of claimants for undeveloped parts of the field, whose cases will be heard first. December 1 was set for the beginning of arguments concerning the heart of the area where 36 producing wells are situated.

The permits and leases in dispute originally were awarded by the states of Oklahoma and Texas. The United States government, however, later declared the territory public land and took possession, and has been operating it since under a receivership.

CLAIMS HE KILLED TO PROTECT WOMAN

Washington, November 10.—Fred A. McClellan, 22 years old, is held in the Rockville, Md., jail, charged with stabbing to death Thomas A. Sims, a wealthy contractor, 52 years old, and at whose home McClellan boarded.

After the stabbing McClellan assumed an officer and surrendered. Police said he made a statement declaring he went to the Sims home and found the latter intoxicated and abusing his wife. Sims, he said, turned on him, shook his fist and ordered him out of the house. Sims, he asserted, followed him into the yard, abused and irritated him and attempted to strike him with a stick. In self-defense, he said, he drew a pocket-knife and cut Sims after the latter had wielded the stick.

Mrs. Sims was placed in the care of a physician after the killing. Police said she had made no statement.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY OFFICIAL INJURED

Cincinnati, November 10.—C. M. Mitchell, general superintendent of the Southern Railway system, was under the care of physicians at Christ hospital, Cincinnati, today, following a collision of a gasoline-propelled inspection car with a loaded coal train near Bardsville, Ky., last Saturday.

Mr. Mitchell suffered a fractured leg and numerous painful bruises when he jumped from the car which in addition to Mr. Mitchell was carrying seven passengers, three of whom were seriously hurt when they leaped from the car.

Mr. Mitchell and Mrs. Norman Taylor, of Burnside, Ky., were brought to Cincinnati last Saturday night. It was learned. Two others, Miss Alice Bronson and Mrs. Ray Chesley, both of Cumberland Falls, Ky., were treated elsewhere.

The party was on an informal inspection of the Southern Railway system when Mr. Mitchell noticed the coal train bearing down on them. He gave the alarm and the party leaped a moment before the train crashed into the inspection car.

AMENDMENT POLLS ARE STILL VAGUE

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Although Florida emphatically approved a constitutional amendment Tuesday providing that no inheritance or income tax be levied by the state and exempting the head of a family from taxation of personal property to a valuation of $500, six days after the election the result of proposed changes in the organic law of several other states remains in doubt.

So close have several contests developed that the official review of the returns by state canvassing bodies will be necessary to decide the results. South Carolina will not know for several days if its legislature is to meet annually or biennially. The result is regarded as very much in doubt pending the call of the state board of canvassers by the secretary of state. The proposed state bond issue of $10,000,000 for educational purposes is conceded only a narrow chance of passage.

Georgia Amendments Pass.

Biennial sessions of the general assembly were received with enthusiasm in Georgia, where a heavy majority was polled in favor of the change. Georgia also voted to exempt certain manufacturing industries from taxation for a period of five years and authorized the creation of a new county, Peach, to be the state's 161st county.

State of the proposal for a constitutional convention in Tennessee is in doubt. Early returns gave a majority against the proposal and later advances swung the advantage to the affirmative by a narrow margin. With the returns yet incomplete the official count will be necessary to decide. The latest tabulation gives the convention proposal a lead of 1,200 votes.

Alabama Votes For Seven.

By a vote of about three to one, Alabama favored seven amendments. Perpetual exemption from poll tax will be granted all world war veterans and authority is given for forming drainage districts, good roads and seal wall districts in the state. A number of amendments with more local than state significance were also authorized. Louisiana's constitution is only a few years old and for some years it will be necessary for the entire state to vote on many local amendments, 13 amendments being on the ballot at this election. The only proposed change of more than local interest was a proposal, adopted without serious opposition, whereby pensions of Confederate veterans will be increased. Orleans parish voting alone on a proposed substitution of the Aldermanic form for the present commission government in New Orleans refused to make the change.

Mississippi Rejects Changes.

Mississippi took a position of letting well enough alone, apparently, the voters defeating all three amendments submitted. One provided for abolishment of equality of assessments, paying the way for a graduated state income tax. The remaining two were to make levee board members elected by the people instead of appointed by the governor.

On the basis of available returns, North Carolina has authorized a state bond issue of $2,500,000 for farm loans to former soldiers for the purpose of establishing homes. The proposal for a state-owned steamship line and terminals seems to have been defeated on the face of incomplete returns. The vote in favor of limiting the state debt was decisive, as was the vote for making sinking funds inviolate for the purpose set aside. The vote on the question of increasing salaries of members of the general assembly was close. A heavy vote was polled in favor of homestead tax exemption.

In addition to the far-reaching amendment against income and inheritance taxes, Florida carried an amendment authorizing the legislature to provide a uniform rate of taxation and for special rates of taxation on intangible property not to exceed five mills on the dollar and to exempt from taxation property owned for municipal, educational, scientific, literary, religious or charitable purposes. Georgia may take a place in high way improvement as the result of far-reaching action on an amendment to permit coastal paving, six coast counties having a chance as a result of the election to have highways that will connect with interstate roads.

Freight Terminals To Cost $1,500,000 Go To Birmingham

Birmingham, November 10.—Plans for the erection of freight terminals here at a cost of more than $1,000,000 were announced today by James M. Kurn, president of the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad. The Frisco has acquired property on which the developments will be made.

CHINESE LEADERS MEET AT TIENTSIN

London, November 10.—Sun Yat Sen, head of the government of southern China, arrived today at Tientsin, where a conference of several of the principal figures opposed to the former military regime in Peking is about to be held, says a dispatch from Tientsin. Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian war lord, also arrived for the conference.

Feng Yu Hsing, "the Christian general," had previously reached Tientsin, where it had been announced he would confer with former Premier Tuan Chi Jui. Chang Tso-Lin and Chang Hsueh Liang, son of Chang Tso-Lin.

WU IS PLANNING TO REASSEMBLE FORCES.

About four and one-half gallons were taken, officers said.

Then Fletcher says they overpowered and cut off his hand with a hatchet. Police are investigating his story. Fletcher, minus one hand, is recovering here in a hospital.

Other democratic election officers under bond on charges of conspiracy are to have their hearing November 18.

AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES ADD EMORY TO LIST

Emory University, Ga., November 11.—(Special.)—The Association of American Universities has placed Emory on its approved list, after an investigation extending over several years, and in the future Emory will be rated on equal academic footing with any university in the world.

This means that a student going from Emory to any other school will receive full credit for all work done. This has already been the case in practically all departments, and the action of the association is merely confirmatory.

Emory is also being mentioned, along with Agnes Scott, for a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity.

BROTHER-IN-LAW OF PEGGY JOYCE SUED FOR $24,000

Chicago, November 10.—The Lind Company, furniture dealers, started suit here today against David G. Joyce, Chicago lumberman and brother of Stanley Joyce, former husband of Peggy Hopkins Joyce Moner, for $24,000, the balance on an account of $104,389.46 which the company contends Joyce ran in 1921 and 1922 in furnishing two homes, one here and one at Miami, Fla., for his prospective bride, a former Mrs. Edward A. Esch. Joyce sent checks for about $80,000, the bill said, but recently has not made any payments. Joyce was divorced from his first wife in 1920, she receiving $50,000 alimony and $15,000 attorney's fees and the income from bonds valued at $200,000. The same year, he was sued for $500,000 by Edward A. Esch, who charged Joyce had alienated the affections of his wife.

Judges Uphold Carroll's Views On Modern Art

New York, November 10.—Well, art has won, after a struggle.

Earl Carroll, the producer, is now as free as the nude ladies in the three acts in front of his eyes which got him and art into trouble. Justices Hermann Edwards and Murphy went into executive session with the judges after the charges of "obscenity" against Carroll came up for final trial Monday.

After but three minutes of serious and private contemplation, they announced the decision. "The figures are simply nude." Inasmuch as everyone had known this in the first place, that was about all there was to it. Being a man who never likes to cause any trouble, Carroll's attorney moved for a dismissal and it was granted.

Carroll was led out of court by an escort of cheering friends and chorus girls while a shrinking press agent courteously cleared a space for reporters and photographers. Having won this much of a victory, and with half of the shows on Broadway presenting one or more dazzling cuties in no clothing whatever, the musical comedy producers are now trying to figure out a costume for the girls which is more undressed than the mere nude.

The four fliers were guests tonight at a banquet. Tomorrow they will be guests of the disabled war veterans and the American Legion and will participate in an Armistice day parade.

Others, who aided in making the comedy a success were Franklin Carter, Charles Johnston, Sam Hughes, Frank McMullen, Earl Blackwell, Howard Bandy, Griffin Edwards and James Jacobs.

Trolley and Box Cars in Crash; No One Injured

Passengers and the crew of an Atlanta-bound trolley car and its trailer narrowly missed death early Monday night when the two cars crashed into a railroad freight car at Murray Hill crossing on the North Decatur line.

The leading car, piloted by Motorman E. O. Evans, of 329 West Fifth street, crashed into the freight car head-on. The freight car, which was being pushed into the Georgia railroad trunk line from the Seaboard Air Line belt line, was knocked from the tracks and the two trolley cars bounded from their tracks.

The front of the leading trolley car was crushed in. The passengers on both cars were hurled from their seats, but all escaped injury. Motorman Evans also escaped injury, as did the other two members of the trolley crew.

The crash occurred about 7 o'clock. Traffic was delayed while the freight car was being moved. The leading car of the trolley was damaged to such an extent that it had to be towed in for repairs.

Another accident occurred at 8:15 o'clock, when a trolley car crashed into a Peachtree car at Peachtree circle. Three negro passengers were slightly injured. They were reported to have gone to their homes after being treated at Grady hospital.

BAND AND PATROL ORGANIZED MONDAY

Organization of a band and patrol featured the regular semi-monthly meeting and banquet of the Caravan club No. 1, Macabees, held Monday night at the temple, 217 1-2 Peachtree street. The new organizations will begin preparations at once, it is said, for the trip to the annual convention to be held in Washington in July, 1925. Dr. J. C. Oakshette, vice president, presided.

State Commander R. E. Leatherman talked on various phases of Macabees work, stressing pre-convention plans. He congratulated members of the order in Georgia upon retention of the silver cup awarded by the national organization to leaders in expansion work. Georgia won, it was stated, over the keenest competition of various states and Canadian provinces.

M. D. Gleason, past state commander, and traffic director for southeastern states, spoke of pathfinding progress and plans for the nation-wide motorcycle. He has visited a number of cities in the southeast during the past month, he said, always extending an invitation to members in other states to make the temple in Atlanta headquarters when visiting this city. Morris Weinberg, of the state field force, leader in the band and patrol movement, obtained signatures of a score of members for the two new units.

Professor Autobell, director of the band and patrol, spoke optimistically of plans for the local organizations' new outfits. He is widely known as a band leader and Atlanta Macabees are enthusiastic over prospects. Special stress will be laid in training for exhibitions at the national convention, he said.

Others who spoke included Volney B. Jones, deputy state commander, who stated that a new tent would be organized in Fulton county. Dr. H. W. Bowden, Commander A. J. Bailey, G. S. Buchanan, Sam Chomsky and Marvin P. Roane were other speakers. The Macabees orchestra furnished musical features and a Vaudeville restaurant prepared and served the food for more than 100 members.

The regular weekly dance will be held at the temple tonight, it was stated.

NO TIME FOR YALE TOOK COLLEGE HOME SAYS H. C. WITWER

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Nov. 10.—Interviewed here today, the popular short-story writer, H. C. Witwer, confessed that he has acquired a college education without going to any college. In response to a query concerning the classical literary flavor of the opening paragraphs and titles of his current stories in Collier's and in Cosmopolitan Magazine, Witwer produced a letter he had just written to a friend in New York.

"I most assuredly have a Five-Foot Shelf," he wrote, "and if you don't think I use it constantly for inspiration, reference and mental calisthenics, you should see the well-thumbed pages. "There is no excuse for anyone missing a college education when these books are available."

In response to further inquiries, Witwer said that he has been successfully a newsboy, soda jerk, circus publicity writer. "I have never had time to be an inmate of dear old Yale," he added, "but a constant inmate of my home has been."

DR. ELIOT'S FIVE-FOOT SHELF OF BOOKS

To H. C. Witwer, one of the most popular and admired of modern writers, as to so many thousand other successful men and women, this great library has been a liberal education and a tool of success.

Every ambitious young man and woman ought to know something about this famous and useful collection of the world's greatest books—books that will be as useful to you if you are a lawyer, salesman, minister, executive, engineer, or banker as they have been to H. C. Witwer and so many other writers.

Let us send you a free book called "Fifteen Minutes a Day," which tells how Dr. Eliot of Harvard has put into the Five-Foot Shelf "the essentials of a liberal education," and how he has so arranged it with notes and reading courses that even fifteen minutes a day are enough to give you the knowledge of literature and life, the culture and the thinking capacity which every university strives to give.

Every reader of this newspaper is invited to have a free copy of this readable and stimulating little book. Write your name and address below and mail the coupon; your book will come by return mail.

Finds Kellogg's Bran "Easy way to avoid constipation" after suffering for years

Constipation is a dangerous disease. It can lead to many others. Twenty years' suffering with constipation determined this man's health. Kellogg's Bran restored it—as it has done for thousands. This is what he says:

"Gentlemen: After eating Kellogg's Bran twice a day for one month I find it not only an 'Easy Way to Avoid Constipation,' but an easy and most pleasant way to cure it. I have been troubled with constipation . . . for more than twenty years . . . after adopting the milk and bran diet I find my stomach greatly improved, and find it a specific for constipation. . . . I feel it only justice that you should know what your product has done for me, and what it is capable of doing for others." (The original of this letter is on file at the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.)

The disappearance of the jewels, including several handsome articles of unusual design, has thus far proved a baffling mystery to the detective department. Lieutenant Andrews stated.

BROOKHART LEAD IS PARED TO 674

Des Moines, Iowa, November 10.—(By the Associated Press.)—Senator Smith W. Brookhart's unofficial majority over his democratic opponent for the United States senate in Tuesday's election had dwindled from 1,025 to 674 when more than one-half of the election boards in Iowa's 99 counties completed their official canvass vote late today. Returns from these official canvases are not expected to be completed in all counties until late this week, numerous boards having adjourned this evening until after Armistice day.

The race and gain for each candidate had fluctuated widely on the reports so far received. In fifty counties the result was a gain of 90 votes for Senator Brookhart, while his loss totaled 200 votes. Stock had gained 470 and lost 223. The new total stood tonight: Brookhart 447,420; Stock 440,752.

The county auditor's report on the canvass contained no explanation of the changes, which, however, were assumed to be largely due to errors of election judges in transcribing totals from their tally sheets to the outside of envelopes containing the precinct ballots.

I would estimate that fully two-thirds of the republicans voted against him."

Dallas, Texas, November 10.—Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, democratic candidate for governor, had a majority of 81,393 votes over Dr. George C. Butte, republican, when complete returns from 169 of Texas' 252 counties in Tuesday's election had been tabulated today. The figures: Ferguson, 325,382; Butte, 243,989.

Costume Foibles of Woman LADY TERRINGTON EXHIBITS "SLANDERED" ITEMS Furnish Court With Satire

London, November 10.—(By The Associated Press.)—The fur coat and pearls belonging to Lady Terrington, former liberal member of parliament, were exhibited in court today during the trial of her libel action against a London newspaper for the publication, during the 1923 campaign, of an interview which she asserted described her as a "vain, frivolous and extravagant woman who is unfit to be a member of parliament."

The trial was held before Lord Darling, a jurist famous for his humor, and the spectators were treated, in addition to a view of aristocratic wearing apparel, to a flow of badinage on the part of the judge and counsel—and even the former woman parliament member herself—in which the propriety of wearing high-colored hose, tight skirts and other modern fashion innovations in the staid old house of parliament, was discussed both seriously and lightly. Lady Terrington denied she had discussed what she would wear in the house with the interviewer, who was said to have quoted her as saying she would wear her best clothes, furs, pearls and ostriches when she attended the sessions. She admitted, however, that although she never wore or owned ostriches, she had worn furs and pearls. Incidentally, she revealed that while on one occasion she wore two strings of pearls. One was an imitation and the much-discussed fur coat was five years old.

Asked by counsel for the defense if it "has been one of your boasts that, although you now are a member of the aristocracy, your own behavior was from the people," she replied: "Certainly, we are all from the people."

An exhibition of her photograph showing her dressed as a mannequin brought an explanation from Lady Terrington that she had appeared in this garb for charity. Upon this explanation the judge remarked that "clarity covers a multitude of sins," and the opposing counsel interjected "and dispenses with lots of clothes."

MRS. OLDDHAM CLAIMS INDICTMENT MISTAKE

Mrs. Lucille D. Oldham, of New Orleans, who was indicted last week by the Fulton county grand jury on charges of larceny after travel, called at the office of Solicitor General John A. Boykin Monday and said she was prepared to prove that the indictment was a mistake and that she can clear her name of the charges when given an opportunity.

Mrs. Oldham explained her position in the case to Assistant Solicitor J. H. Hudson, but failed to see either Solicitor Boykin or Assistant Solicitor

NEW FARM BOARD TO MEET MONDAY

Washington, November 10.—President Coolidge has called the newly-appointed agriculture commission to meet here for conference next Monday.

The organization of eight farm leaders headed by Robert D. Carey, former governor of Wyoming, will begin on that day the task of the mapping out of a program for the permanent relief of farming conditions. Under plans of the president, legislative action deemed necessary by the commission will be pushed for enactment at the forthcoming short session of congress.

Several farm organizations are having annual meetings this month and it is expected their representatives to the commission will bring newly-formed views of the bodies into the conference.

It was reported at the solicitor general's office that Mrs. Oldham could be given a hearing Tuesday. No bench warrant has been issued for her arrest and she has not been required to post bond for her appearance at trial.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

The trial was held before Lord Darling, a jurist famous for his humor, and the spectators were treated, in addition to a view of aristocratic wearing apparel, to a flow of badinage on the part of the judge and counsel—and even the former woman parliament member herself—in which the propriety of wearing high-colored hose, tight skirts and other modern fashion innovations in the staid old house of parliament, was discussed both seriously and lightly. Lady Terrington denied she had discussed what she would wear in the house with the interviewer, who was said to have quoted her as saying she would wear her best clothes, furs, pearls and ostriches when she attended the sessions. She admitted, however, that although she never wore or owned ostriches, she had worn furs and pearls. Incidentally, she revealed that while on one occasion she wore two strings of pearls. One was an imitation and the much-discussed fur coat was five years old.

H., on November 5. Travers' body was found in a mill pond near his house, weighted down by logs. Holloway, who came here last night from Lunenburg, Vt., was described by County Solicitor Matthew J. Ryan of New Hampshire, in his request for apprehension to the local police, as "a bad actor with a long criminal record." It was said that he fled from his home eight miles from Whitefield.

Pine Tar and Honey Still Best for Chest Colds and Coughs

Our mothers and grandmothers would never be without pine tar syrup in the house for coughs, chest colds, etc. This was many years ago, but modern medicine has never been able to improve on this time-tested remedy. Doctors say the pine tar is hard to beat for quickly loosening and removing the phlegm and congestion that are the actual cause of the cough. At the same time pine tar and honey soon soothe and heal all irritation and soreness.

The kind that has been used with families for years is that known as Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. This is scientifically compounded of just the right proportions of pine tar, honey and other quick-acting, healing ingredients which the best doctors have found to aid in quick relief. It contains absolutely no opiates, narcotics or harmful drugs, so can be given to young children—fine for spasmodic croup. It tastes good, too. If you want the best, a medicine that often stops the severest cough overnight, be sure you get Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey. It costs only 25c at any good druggist's.—(adv.)

Destroying Car of Whisky Shipped as 'Lumber'

HAMMERS DESTROY BIG LIQUOR CACHE

Prohibition agents stationed at Atlanta headquarters spent practically the entire day Monday in removing and destroying approximately 24,000 quarts of high-grade liquor from the freight car in which the large shipment was discovered Sunday night. Guards were stationed about the car after Captain Grover C. Fain, of the Atlanta police department, investigated a report that the car contained liquor and found ample evidence on which to order that the car be detached from a north-bound train. He notified Prohibition Director Fred D. Dismuke and turned the illicit cargo over to federal agents.

Director Dismuke held a brief conference with J. W. Powell, legal adviser to the prohibition department, Monday morning and immediately ordered that the liquor shipment be removed from the freight car and destroyed.

Scores of Curious Gathers. The car was switched into a siding and the business of destroying the cargo got under way. The lumber under which the liquor was packed was removed and large trucks were brought alongside the car. Scores of curious citizens gathered about the scene as the liquor was transferred from the freight car to the trucks. Guards mounted the trucks and the contraband shipment was driven through the downtown section on its way to destruction. A city dumping ground, off Luckie street, south of Marietta street, was selected as the spot where the liquor was to be destroyed. Scores of people followed the fascinating freight to the "slaughter," and groans in unison broke forth as hammers smashed the first cases of whisky.

Scotch, rye, beer and other varieties of drinks went the same route as the hammers continued to smash glass for hours. The greater portion of the shipment was contained in huge sacks of six-quint capacity each. However, hundreds of cases were in the crates, once familiar to brewers and consumers.

Hammers fell on sacks and crates alike. Shortly after 3 o'clock, the last of the shipment trickled into the soft earth where it was being poured out. Police and prohibition agents set the remains on fire and throngs of Atlanta's populace watched the great clouds of smoke rise as newspaper and moving picture film photographers "snapped" and "shot" to their heart's content.

Broken Bottle Gives Clue.

In the meantime, Director Dismuke launched an investigation into the source from which the liquor came. It was billed as lumber from J. K. Smith & Johnson, Brunswick, to Mitchell Johnson, Inc., of Chicago. Railroad officials volunteered their services in seeking to establish the man or men who shipped the cargo.

Captain Fain followed a tip that the car contained liquor and halted it on a northward trip. It was reported that a railroad employee grew suspicious after he smelled liquor while passing the car in the yards east of the Union station. A bottle that was broken while in transit is credited with having betrayed the illicit consignment.

ed grape juice does not become wine until fermentation stops.

The case of grape juice to which sugar had been added contained 11.64 per cent of alcohol, Beyer said. That which was allowed to ferment without sugar contained 3.34 per cent alcohol.

Richard Ryan, the other government chemist, who took samples at Hill's home, corroborated Beyer's testimony.

Hill was indicted following a cider festival at his home in this city. All comers were invited to the party. A temporary injunction had been issued against the Maryland congressman after government chemists had analyzed wine, manufactured at the Hill residence and which, it is alleged, contained more than one-half of one per cent alcohol.

The case of Representative Hill has attracted nation-wide interest. At last Tuesday's election Hill was given a vote of confidence by his constituents in the Third Maryland district, who turned out en masse and gave him an overwhelming majority over his democratic opponent, Dr. Charles H. Heller, chairman of the board of moving picture censors.

Baldwin Plans No Change In British Foreign Policy

New Conservative Premier Pays Tribute to U. S. in Speech at Lord-Mayor's Banquet

LONDON, November 10.—(By The Associated Press)—Great Britain's first labor cabinet did not hold office long enough to have the privilege of appearing at the time-honored Lord Mayor's banquet. Thus Stanley Baldwin, the new prime minister, the principal guest at last year's banquet, was again the guest of honor tonight at Guild hall, when all the conservative ministers and their wives gathered together. The American, Spanish, Italian and Japanese ambassadors and the Chilean minister also were present.

While the guests were assembling in the library it was observed that Austen Chamberlain, secretary for foreign affairs, was in animated conversation with the Spanish ambassador. Later Mr. Chamberlain, toasting the foreign ambassadors, emphasized the empire's desire for peace. Alluding to the United States, he said:

Rejoice at U. S. Cooperation. We rejoice at the cooperation of the United States and trust that the cooperation in whatever form might appear fitting to the president and create will not be withheld from us in the difficulties we have to face.

He also referred to "the great services made to humanity" by the League of Nations. He was happy, he said, to couple with the toast the name of the Spanish ambassador, to whom he paid warm tribute for his personal qualities, which had won him the regard of the British people.

The Spanish queen, the foreign secretary pointed out, was a princess of the British royal house and Spain a country with which Great Britain is intimate by association.

Praises Ministers. Senior Alfonso Merry Del Val, replying in behalf of the diplomatic corps, expressed deepest gratitude to Mr. Chamberlain for his allusions to the Spanish sovereigns. He mentioned that this was the first time the foreign envoys of every nation had had the opportunity of speaking to Mr. Chamberlain in his capacity as foreign secretary.

The lord mayor toasted his majesty's ministers. In replying Premier Baldwin created laughter by saying that just as the ancient fumes of Magog presided over this banquet, so he had placed two giants, one over the treasury to guard the pockets of the people, the other at the foreign office to guard British policy abroad—this being an allusion to Mr. Churchill and Mr. Chamberlain.

Expounds Foreign Policy. Because he had just come into office, he must omit the customary review of the situation at home and abroad. He could say, however, with the full approval of his colleagues, that the main objects of the government's foreign policy would be stability and continuity.

"We stand by the peace treaties," he said, "and will cultivate good relations with all foreign countries on the basis of those treaties. That this is no policy of stagnation is shown by the action taken by the leading part of the administration, which led directly to the Dawes report and the London conference, that under the able direction of Ramsey MacDonald proved so successful.

"Not only was the conference valuable in itself, but it had special significance, in that it marked the entry of the United States into European affairs. His majesty's government while fully understanding the peculiar circumstances which render difficult continuous cooperation of America in European affairs, cannot but express their appreciation and gratitude for the leading part played by America in the negotiations which culminated in the Lon-as preference and defense, which needed to be reviewed by the present government.

Concluding with a general reference to home affairs, adverse trade and housing troubles, the premier went on to say that the government would do everything possible to improve the lot of the masses along the lines hitherto pursued, and "not by changing the basis of our system, by which we should fall into a pit of poverty and misery."

The air minister, Sir Samuel Hoare, was able to reassure the citizens of London that, thanks to the continuity of the policy of his predecessor, Lord Thomson, the air defense of British shores was substantially better than a year ago.

Explains Reason for Bar.

"Now if the same thing had happened to Mrs. Spiffington de Bauch, of the Long Island De Bauches, everybody would have said, 'Ain't it awful and, my gosh, can such things happen?' But because it happened to me, and because I'm a dresser on Broadway, and make my own living—and a good living, too, if it's anything to you—why they all make a lot of wise cracks about me being a Broadway butterfly and act as if I ought to have enjoyed it.

"Listen to Princess, brother. I mean to explain that after all, us working girls have got some feelings, and I for one, positively despise being smacked in the mouth with the butt-end of a pistol and having two teeth knocked out or even half of that.

"Well, they discovered that I've got a bar in my house and a little tiff pool in my back garden and they tried to make out that I am always arriving rough parties and staying up till after midnight and holding swimming tournaments in champagne in the fish-pool. As a matter of fact I have got a bar, but I can name you twenty New York millionaires, just off-hand, who have got 'em too, in their homes. The reason you have to have a bar in your house in New York these days is that if you don't have a bar your guests will be setting their glasses down on the piano and the radio and you know the stuff we get nowadays is terrible on the varnish. And the reason I have the pool is Leslie, my pet fish, and Emma, his wife, didn't want to raise their children in a tiny little fish-bowl in the house.

Expects To Collect Million.

"Well, they thought they made a sucker of me when I was hurt. Although I'm a woman and I had been treated like Dempsey handled Firpo, I got about as much sympathy as a poor-box robber. But they made one mistake. In making a sucker of me, they overlooked the fact that they were making me famous. They went on to say that I was the dress designer for all the big movie girls and the Broadway shows.

"They put me across biz. I'm open-

Look, mother! for film on your child's teeth

That's often a danger sign. If the dentifrice you now use doesn't combat it successfully, it's inadequate. How to combat it without harmful grit—the new way in child's tooth care specialists recommend.

FOREMOST dental authorities now advise a new way in caring for a child's teeth. A way different in formula, action and effect from any other method.

As a nation-wide hygienic movement, a 10-day test is offered mothers free.

You are urged to make it. To see what modern science is doing for the better protection of children's teeth and health. Simply use the coupon.

What film indicates. Why it must be fought several times daily

Look at your child's teeth. If cloudy, dull, discolored, there's a film. And that film is often a danger sign. The child can feel it by running his tongue across his teeth.

Ordinary tooth pastes won't combat it successfully. Try the one you now use. See if the film does not still remain.

Film is a viscous coat that clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It makes pearly teeth ugly, discolored—dingy. Many a naturally pretty child is handicapped in this way.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Now a new way

Now modern science has found a safe way to combat film. Super-gritty substances are judged dangerous to the teeth. Soap and chalk methods are inadequate.

This new method, embodied in the tooth paste called Pepsodent, provides the scientifically proved combatant that is being adopted by the people of some 50 nations. Its action is to curdle the film, then harmlessly to remove it.

There will remain a question as to the correctness of the time announced. Many flaws exist in timing and there are too many incapable men handling the timing. The only way to overcome this is electric timing, and until a device is invented which will insure absolute accuracy in timing, the recorded records will be under a shadow of doubt and a nine and two tenths record would never be fully believed.

LIGHT WORK PROGRAM OF JACKETS THIS WEEK

Emory Grid Season Ends in Triangular Tie

Frosh, Sophs, Juniors Win Three Games Each; Season Is Successful

BY PORTER HARVEY.

The effective punting of Bob Crawford, a 70-yard run for touchdown by this same Bob Crawford, and the remarkable improvement shown by the entire sophomore defense over anything else it has had this year, gave the sophomore football team a 6-2-2 victory over the freshmen Monday morning, and tied the race for the Emory championship in a three-cornered knot between the sophs, rats and juniors. The lawyer-seniors got their first win of the season from the theologs, 6 to 0, in the afternoon.

The first game, being the determining game of the season, was desperately played by both sides, and was witnessed by two howling mobs of rooters. The freshmen had the edge as far as first downs were concerned, but the sophs made up for this by the superior toe-work of Crawford. Neither team was able to gain much over the determined defense of the other, and so each resorted to frequent punts, the sophomores gaining with every exchange of punts. In the first period the rats had forced their opponents back almost under the latter's goal post when the ball changed hands and the sophs attempted to punt out. A bad pass from center made it impossible for Crawford to kick, and he was downed behind the line for a safety.

Ball Sways. In the second and third quarters the ball continued to move from one end of the field to the other, without closely approaching either goal. The freshmen made a large part of their advances by means of forward passes, although their backs got through the line of the sophomores' gains. The first-year boys were considerably handicapped by the loss of Chambers, their regular quarter, and Stockman, star halfback. The sophs' attack was somewhat weak, but the whole outfit bunched together and held solidly against the freshmen plays.

In the last quarter, when the freshmen seemed to be marching toward the sophs' goal, the forward pass, which has served them so well all this season, failed to connect and gave the sophomores the chance they had been waiting for. Crawford snatched the ball on the 70-yard line and put on a sprint which carried him away from three freshmen tacklers and on out to where Smith was dumping the safety man and leaving him an open field to the goal. He failed at the extra point.

Scoring Ends. From this point on the game resumed its back-and-forth character, no further score being made. The most brilliant playing on the second-year men's line was that of Pilgrim, at center. Pat Field leaned his bulky form up against more opposing plays than he ever has before and the whole line put up a scrappy game that did credit to their spirit. Not counting Crawford's long run, Pollard probably gained most plays for the sophs, in spite of his injured knee. The freshmen made full use of their strong reserves, putting in nearly two full teams. In their backfield, Langford put out the best brand of football, Leighton also doing good work.

Craig clinched his position as one of the most dangerous tacklers in school by continuing his habit of springing numerous plays behind the line of scrimmage. Wood, playing guard alongside Craig, also was arsenic for the rat attacks.

Start With Rush. The theologs started the second game of the day with a rush by smashing through the lawyer-senior line, mainly over their right tackle, A. B. Clarke, for nine first downs in succession. The freshmen stopped them 15 yards from the goal, held them for downs, and punted out. Once more theologs marched toward law's goal, and once more law stopped them before they reached it and punted out.

In the second period the lawyers took the ball to the sophomores' 30-yard line and Darsey threw a 20-yard pass to Gibson, who eluded two theologs and carried it across for the only score of the game. After an exchange of punts in the third quarter and some hard, straight football, the ministers got the ball on their opponents' eighty-yard line on a first down. The barriers tightened up and held them, the ball changing hands one yard from the goal. The last quarter was uneventful.

The backfield was the strongest part of the lawyers' machine, with Logan's line-plugging, Warnell's pass-blocking and tackling, and Darsey and Watson's broken-field running. Kronstadt, Wiggins, and Deese starred in the line. For theologs Duncan and James were about the only men who could get much yardage, while Howell and Clarke were the best bets among the forwards.

This game closed what is undoubtedly the best football season that Emory has ever had. More men have been out for the various teams, the sophomores, been a better brand of football has been played.

The fact that the freshmen team, with its former prep-school stars, including six undefeated players, did not outclass the other teams on the campus proves that Emory football is of a type that would compare favorably with that of other schools. Students of Emory cherish a hope that some day a team representing the school will be allowed to try its mettle against another football aggregation.

FIGHT CARD REACHES HIGH EBB AT N. Y.

New York, November 10.—(United News.)—In competition with national apple week, write-a-letter-home week, cutmore-cheese week and a few other similar celebrations, the ringmasters in the metropolitan area have designated the present seven-day period as sea-knock-out week.

Fight fans are getting their money changed into nickels now so that they will lose no time at subway stations in getting from one bout to another for each and every night, from Monday on, counts if the ring hounds are to make a perfect record during the week.

Never in the history, at least not in the past three or four months, of fighting business, have there been so many matches of such quality crowded into such a short space of time.

Full Week. Monday night's scrap between Luis Vicentini and Sammy Vogel was just a start. Tuesday night at the Pioneer club, Al Brown, the gawky negro flyweight, will clash with Tommy Milton for 15 rounds. Brown is said to resemble George Forman, which is inclined to believe was due to over-confidence more than anything else. It takes just such a shock as this to knock the over-confidence out of a team, and for that reason the Washington team which California will meet looms as a dangerous opponent.

Stanford in Way. Even if we get safe by the Husky game, we still have Stanford to meet. The Big Red team this year is considered one of the strongest ever developed at Stanford. I have not Choices of Two. Those who do not wish to cross the Hudson Wednesday night may stay in town and take in the show at the rink where the Red Devils is to do battle with Mel Cogan.

Thursday night is official fight night and fans may catch up on their sleep for on Friday night they will be invited to Madison Square Garden for the climax of the week when Paul Brenbach and Tony Marullo will stage a real show. Although Brenbach is not the terror that he once was he still carries the title of the "Astoria Assassin." Marullo, who created something of a sensation in New Orleans, made his debut in the garden when he took the wind out of the Kansas cyclone, Billy Britton.

TUNNEY DROPS BUDDIE M'HALE

Memphis, Tenn., November 10.—Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, knocked out Buddie McHale, of St. Louis, in the second round of a scheduled eight-round bout here tonight. McHale was hopelessly outclassed and had Tunney chosen, the end would have come in the first round.

McHale was trying to rise after going down for the fourth time in the second round when his seconds threw a towel into the ring.

MALONE FOULED BY SCHLAIFER

St. Paul, Minn., November 10.—Morris Schlaifer, of Omaha, fouled Jack Malone, middleweight, of St. Paul, twice in the third round of his scheduled 10-round fight tonight, after Malone had knocked him to the floor with a straight right-hand punch.

Virtually out from the punch that sprawled him momentarily on the floor, Schlaifer arose to weather a storm of rights and lefts and then swung a blow that was palpably low. Malone, however, refused to accept the foul, waved the referee aside and plunged to the attack.

A hail of rights and lefts had Schlaifer on the ropes, when he again fouled Malone, this time so seriously that the St. Paul fighter was unable to continue. While Malone writhed on the floor, a crowd of angry fans surrounded the ring, but they dispersed peacefully when Malone arose in a few minutes.

Previous to the fight the fight was all Malone's.

LUIS VICENTINI KAYOES VOGEL

New York, November 10.—Luis Vicentini, Argentine lightweight, knocked out Sammy Vogel, of New York, in the ninth round of their 12-round bout tonight. A right hand to the jaw finished Vogel two minutes and ten seconds after the ninth round started. Each boxer weighed 136 pounds.

Death For Negro. Bradenton, Fla., November 10.—S. it. ce of death has been passed upon James Conchman, negro, convicted in circuit court Friday of the time of criminal assault upon a young girl of his own race. Had Conchman escaped that charge he would have been tried on the charge of murder, the child having been killed to death after being maltreated. Her body was found in a dense woods two weeks ago, after she had been missing from home 24 hours.

Berkeley's Grid Clash May Have Championship Flavor

BY ANDY SMITH.

Head Football Coach, California. University of California, November 10.—(Special.)—California's defeat of the University of Southern California, and Pennsylvania's victory over Lafayette when both winning teams were doped to lose, and consequently the intercollegiate game between Pennsylvania and California at Berkeley on New Year's day with favorable possibilities of becoming a championship affair.

Previous to our defeat of the strong U. S. C. team, the chances of a championship being added to this game were not considered particularly bright, since many critics confidently expected California to lose at least one game. The Bears, however, surprised practically everyone by coming through with a well-earned win over the Southern California team, and are now the favorites to win the conference title for a fifth consecutive time.

Personally I am not so confident as the general public now seems to be. We still have two hard teams to beat before we can call the title ours. Washington, it is true, suffered an unexpected defeat at the hands of the Bears, but the team which is inclined to believe was due to over-confidence more than anything else. It takes just such a shock as this to knock the over-confidence out of a team, and for that reason the Washington team which California will meet looms as a dangerous opponent.

Alabama Is Mathematical Grid Champion of Country

BY ROBERT D. LUSK.

New York, November 10.—To the average follower of the great rah rah sport there are but a score or more universities and colleges, mainly in the east, that are on the football map. Old Siwash, Smalltown College and hundreds of others go about year after year producing football teams, never to be heard of beyond the limits of the schools. It is not until the year 1924 that this condition has been the result of the manner in which championships have been handed out in the past. In 1924, for the first time, the method of doing out the honors and Princeton, Harvard and the great schools of the east are sitting up and taking notice.

The new honor is called the mathematical football championship of America. To the surprise of most the honor doesn't go to the big three, Princeton, Harvard and Yale. For one in the history of the sport a small school has won, so far this season, the championship of America. The mathematical champion for 1924 is Alabama university.

No Cup Awarded. The mathematical football championship carries with it no cup. Walter Camp has never heard of it, but despite all of this it is still a high honor.

Those who have never heard of Alabama University may wonder a bit about the selection. Most surely, Alabama has never played Notre Dame, the Army, Princeton or even Pennsylvania, the team which many consider the leading eleven of the country. But this is not necessary for the mathematical championship is not worked out that way.

This is the way that it is decided: Alabama so far this season has not lost a game. Its goal has been crossed but once and aside from all that it has piled up the largest total of scores of any team this year. It has crossed its enemies goal line for a total of 257 points seven games.

The championship may be carried still further by addition and subtraction. Alabama beat Georgia Tech 14 to 0. Georgia Tech in turn defeated Penn State by a margin of two points. That gives Alabama the edge of 16 points over Penn State, in the mathematical championship race. Figuring further by the same method we find that the southern team is 22 points better than the navy, 19 points ahead of Princeton, 7 better than Notre Dame, 53 ahead of Harvard, and through a roundabout manner it can be found that even the Pennsylvania team is inferior.

W. Virginia Second. Next to Alabama in the mathematical football race comes West Virginia with a total score of 236. Rutgers comes third, just topping the double century mark with 201 points. The fourth place goes to Muhlenberg, in Pennsylvania, with 199 points.

In the mathematical championship, TIGER SCORES DOUBLE WIN

Philadelphia, November 10.—Billy Ryan, Cincinnati welterweight, was awarded the judges' decision over Bobby Barrett, Clifton Heights, Pa., at the conclusion of their 10-round fight tonight. Ryan's victory was not easy and at the close of the encounter he had to be helped from the ring. Barrett weighed 148 and Ryan 150.

Tiger Flowers, Atlanta negro middleweight, won a double victory. He knocked out Jerry Hayes, near the end of the second round and gave Hughey Clemens, his second opponent, such a beating that Clemens' seconds threw a towel into the ring in the second round.

The double bout was staged when Jackie Clark, of Allentown, Pa., was unable to box on account of injuries. Roogie Rodgers knocked out Joe Mandell in the fifth round of their scheduled six-round lightweight bout.

MIKE M'TIGUE WILL MEET FUENTE

Los Angeles, November 10.—Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight, whose repeated knockouts of his opponents during the past two months have added zest to the "heavy" boxing name in the west, will meet Mike McTigue, light heavyweight champion, February 22, in the American Legion stadium at Culver City, near here, according to an announcement today by Fred Winsor, Fuente's manager and also manager of the stadium.

Winsor said Fuente will make 175 pounds at 2 o'clock the afternoon of February 22. His normal fighting weight is 183 pounds.

On November 15 Fuente meets Fred Fulton, Minnesota plunger, in a four-round contest at Culver City, and the winner of this match will go against Bartley Madden at Culver City December 1, according to Winsor.

STRIB FIGHTS FAY KEISER TONIGHT

Young Stribling, weighing somewhat more than he ever has before even though he is in probably the best condition of his career, was speeding toward Greenville, S. C., last evening, headed for a sharp clash in a Greenville ring tonight with Fay Keiser, who has some sizeable victories down on his billing cards.

The fight tonight in Greenville is Stribling's first in several months. In fact, it is his first since he entered University School for Boys to take a college preparatory course, and he headed for a sharp clash in a Greenville ring tonight with Fay Keiser, who has some sizeable victories down on his billing cards.

Fay Keiser is older than Stribling and has a list of wins that includes Bob Martin, by knockout, D'Arcy and Shad. According to Keiser's manager, his battle is set to give Stribling one of the hardest fights the Georgia boy has ever started. Keiser will rely on body punching to confuse up Stribling, according to his manager. Stribling will probably concentrate nowhere in particular, but will shoot jabs and hooks to both the jaw and body.

Coach Alex Taking No Chances as Injured Men Return for Vandy Game

BY GEORGE CONGDON.

The Jackets of Tech will be in the best condition of the 1924 season when they clash with the husky Commodores of Vanderbilt Saturday. Coach Alexander said as much Sunday. Monday the Jackets showed it, for there was only one man who was not in uniform and worked hard. He was Bip Farnsworth, and he will be working Saturday, according to Coach Alexander.

Two members of the 1924 Tornado probably will be out of the lineup Saturday and not even in uniform. They are Gus Merkle, end, and Sid Reeves, halfback. Both are among the most valuable men on the squad, but during the season new material has come out brilliantly and can step up these leaky places.

With Saturday named as Homecoming day for the old grads of Tech, the team will be in shape to give the boys who have gone before it over Tech flats the greatest exhibition of football on Grant field this season. The light work of Monday afternoon will be continued all through the week.

Taking No Chances. "We're not taking any chances with scrimmage this week," Coach Alexander said last night. "The boys are coming around to where they're in good shape, and we'll just hold to the light work with plenty of signal running. The only scrimmage the first team will get between now and the end of the season will be just after the Vanderbilt game and in preparation for Auburn. We have 10 days for the Thanksgiving game and that will give us time for a scrimmage or two."

Coach Alexander yesterday put two teams through one of the fastest and best-looking signal drills seen for more than a week. Both squads were "right," with hardly a fumble, even on new twists to old tricks. The speed of the squads in running the plays was the best we have seen this year at a Tech practice.

The "first-string" backfield was composed yesterday of Wilton, quarterback; Ivan Williams and Sam Murray, halves; and Wycoff, fullback. On some of the plays Wycoff was used as fullback generally, but on others he ran as a half, much as he did in Saturday's scrimmage of the Donahue Tigers from L. S. U. In the other backfield yesterday were the lighter men taking their lines from Fred Moore, quarterback, who will be ready for service again Saturday, against Vandy. With Moore in this backfield were Tom Harris, Carter Barron and Frank Murray. Moore was grabbing passes and holding to them as though he had a magnet to pull the ball in and then glue to keep it there. He is always content at the general's post and has done great work this year.

Sam Murray and Ike Williams looked like one million dollars each, giving promise of even greater things than they have done so far this season. Holding down one of the flank jobs yesterday was Cliff King, who jumped into the lineup Saturday, by his great game against L. S. U. Yesterday he showed a perfect command of that form he showed Saturday. It looks like he has "found" himself. He was somewhat of a surprise in the Notre Dame game, but Saturday he was just about 10 times as sensational as the South Bend job he gave Tech followers.

Gus Merkle, in uniform yesterday, is losing the limp he has been wearing for a couple of weeks now, and may be able to work in the Vandy game if necessity requires it. However, Coach Alexander's declaration yesterday that he will not be ready, then indicates that he will take no chances on Merkle being hurt in the Vanderbilt game to have him on tap for the Tigers from the Plains Thanksgiving day.

FAY'S MANAGER SILENT ON BOUT

Matchmaker Holt Gwiner, of the American Legion, said last night that he failed Monday to hear from Charles Jones, manager of Harry Fay, Louisville light heavyweight, whether he will accept his final offer for a bout with W. L. (Young) Stribling in Atlanta Thanksgiving night. The offer made Fay was the most liberal ever put out to an opponent for Stribling here.

Gwiner said he telegraphed Jones to learn the cause of the delay of definite word of Fay's decision. Jones had failed to notify him Monday as he said he would in a telegram Sunday.

MAYNARD L. WINS STAKE

Phoenix, Ariz., November 10.—Maynard L., last year's 2-year-old champion of the Phoenix track, captured the inaugural stake by two lengths from Recruit over six furlongs and broke the track record for the distance at the opening of the 2-year horse race meet here today. The time was 1:13 2-5. Maynard L.'s performance clipped three-fifths of a second off the record he set last year against western sprinters. The race was worth $1,000 to the winner.

Prominent Weddings Interest Social Contingent on Monday

Three prominent weddings on Monday centered unusual interest in Atlanta and throughout the state. Miss Bob Tarver was wed to Dr. Harold Bowcock, formerly of Springfield, Ill.; Miss Marian Frances Quisenberry became the bride of John Thomas Chambers; and the marriage of Miss Frances Wooley to John Loyd Farmer, of Savannah, was quietly solemnized.

Bowcock-Tarver Wedding Takes Place on Monday.

An event of early November, marked by widespread interest and characterized by beautiful simplicity, was the wedding of Miss Bob Tarver and Dr. Harold Matthew Bowcock, which was solemnized on Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church.

The Rev. J. Spole Lyons performed the ceremony, which was witnessed by only relatives and a few close friends.

Mr. Charles Sheldon at the organ played the beautiful wedding music. "Cantilene Nuptiale," by Dabole; "Calm as the Night," by Bohm; "Romance," by Sheppard; "Nuptial March," by Barnard; "Intermezzo," by Hollins; and "Reverie," by St. Claire, were among the selections rendered by Mr. Sheldon.

Beautiful Church.
The church was beautiful with a lovely display of foliage plants; palms and magnificent white chrysanthemums. The altar was banked with a perfect mass of palms and in its center were two-branched candelabra of heavy hammered brass, holding white wax burning tapers. At either side of this were tall floor baskets holding massive white chrysanthemums.

Miss May Estes Tarver was aid of honor and her sister's only attendant. She was becomingly gowned in tan embroidered georgette, banded in fur. Her hat was also of tan.

Dr. Henry Cliff Sauls was best man. The bride and groom entered together.

Lovely Bride.
The charming bride was lovely in an ensemble suit of rustic bengaline, trimmed in baby leopard. Her attractive hat was of brown ribbon.

Mrs. C. M. Bowcock, mother of the groom, wore brown moire trimmed in beige, with a hat of matching brown. During the evening, Dr. and Mrs. Bowcock left for New Orleans for their wedding trip. On their return they will be at home to their friends at the St. Andrews apartments on West Peachtree street.

Prominent Families.
Mrs. Bowcock is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Tarver, a prominent family of Augusta. She spent most of her childhood in Lincoln, Ga., where she is related to Miss Janie Estes and Dr. W. H.

Dr. Bowcock is the son of Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Bowcock, of Springfield, Illinois, and is a graduate of the University of Michigan and Johns Hopkins. Since 1920 he has been in Atlanta, where he is affiliated with Dr. J. Edgar Paulin. During the war he was in the navy transport service. He is a member of Bell house.

Miss Quisenberry Weds John Thomas Chambers.

The wedding of Miss Marian Frances Quisenberry to John Thomas Chambers took place Monday evening at 6 o'clock at the Jackson Hill Baptist church. The Rev. Richard K. Redwine officiated.

Pulms and cathedral candelabra holding white tapers passed before the altar combined simplicity with dignity in the decorations.

Proceeding the ceremony for which Mendelssohn's wedding march was used, Miss Ruth Jenkins sang "O Promise Me," and during the ceremony "To a Wild Rose" was softly played.

Miss Charlotte Fairleigh, of Paris, Tenn., was the bride's only attendant. She wore coral crepe meteor, the tunic skirt of which flared at the bottom and was edged with fox fur. Rows of crystal buttons also adorned the gown. With this she wore a hat of silver lace and carried an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses.

The bride, who entered with her father, Samuel G. Quisenberry, wore a lovely French gown of bronze satin over orange, made basque effect. The bottom of the tunic was openwork embroidery, headed with roses of orange and gold ribbon. A small hat of orange braid and tulle with touches of orange and gold and brown velvet slippers completed her costume. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of Ophelia roses showered with valley lilies.

Emmett Chambers attended his brother as best man.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Flavor Notes.
As a general rule the flesh of the male animals and fowls has more flavor than that of the female. One exception, however, is the flesh of a goose, which has more flavor than that of the gander.

Tidy Bureau Drawers.
The only possible way for a woman to keep her bureau drawers in a neat condition is to have boxes for her various pins, ribbons, handkerchiefs, etc. Women have far too many necessary trinkets to attempt to keep them unsorted.

Straight From the Waffle Man.
When baking waffles heat the iron for a while before starting to bake. Then put a good-sized lump of lard in the pan and let it melt, turning it once so the iron is greased on both sides. Then pour in your batter. In this way even the first lot will be crisp and brown.

MRS. BUSH TELLS OTHER WOMEN

How Pains in Side and Dragging Down Feelings Were Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Massena, New York.—"I had terrible pains in both my sides and a dragging-down feeling that affected me so that I could hardly walk, and I got run-down. A friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it and I have taken it with the best results. I do my housework and also some outdoor work on the farm. The Vegetable Compound has given me back my health and I cannot praise it enough. I am perfectly willing that you should use these facts if my letter will help other women who still suffer."—Mrs. DELBERT BUSH, R. F. D. 1, Massena, N.Y.

The spirit of helpfulness shown in the letters we are constantly publishing is worthy of notice. These women know by experience what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do. Your troubles are the same as theirs.

If you have pains and a dragging-down feeling and are nervous and irritable, profit by Mrs. Bush's experience and give the Compound a trial.

Courtney Ryley Cooper, writer of circus yarns, tells this story of an old London bus driver in the days of the horse buses: "An American visitor swung himself into a front seat of a bus along-side the driver. Handing over half-a-crown he explained that he was a stranger and wanted the places of interest along the route pointed out, intimating that an addition to the tip might be expected when they reached the journey's end.

The route lay from Piccadilly circus to Earl's court, and the driver was all worked up. First came the Royal academy; then Devonshire house; then the Biddett-Coutts house—all well and duly pointed out—and so on until Princes Gate drove in sight. "Ere yer are, sir," ("Giddap" to the horses), "the 'ome of the bloomin' American millionaire, sir—Pierpoint Morgan, sir," ("Giddap" to the horses).

Just then, in the opposite direction, came another bus. "Watch it, sir," said the driver, morning.

in confidential tones. "Watch me 'ave a bit of fun, sir."

He fished in his pocket and hauled out a piece of string. As the two buses were about to pass he shouted something to the driver of the second bus, at the same time dangling the string in a most tantalizing manner. Instantly the air turned blue with oaths, and whips slashed viciously as the two buses passed.

"Whatever's the matter?" gasped the astonished American.

"Oh, he makes me sick," replied the driver. "He ain't got no sense of humor."

"But what's the string got to do with it?" asked the American.

"Well, yer see, sir, it's like this 'ere. His brother was hung this

Some folks say Wesson Oil is best for salad dressings. Others say it's best for shortening. And others say it's best for frying. They must all be right—for many good cooks

It is—really—a mistake to suppose that "any fat is good enough to fry with." Of course you can fry with any fat but if you want fried food as good to eat and as wholesome as fried food can be you've got to put just as good a fat into your frying pan as you would put into salad dressing, biscuit or anything else you were going to eat.

Frying with Wesson Oil is not an extravagance. After you've tasted it you wouldn't much care if it was.

Governor Walker Speaks at Meeting Of Woman's Club

The outstanding feature of the regular meeting of the Atlanta Woman's club, Monday afternoon, was the brilliant lecture of Governor Clifford Walker, who stated that his attention during the new administration will be given especially to better highways, establishment of schools in the rural districts of the state, protection and development of a better health system and with this accomplished Governor Walker feels that the present administration will have lived up to the vision of our forefathers.

The speaker, in closing his interesting address, urged the women of the club to help him along, with the legislature of the state, to build up a sentiment too strong to be denied; for a state tax reform, as, according to the governor the state cannot accomplish great things with the present tax system, which was not established to fit the present conditions existing.

Program of Music.
One of the beautiful features of the afternoon's program was the music as arranged by Mrs. W. O. Cheers, music chairman for the club. Several attractive vocal selections were rendered by Miss Edith Moore, of Boston, who is in the city assisting George Hinman in voice training. Miss Moore has a beautiful voice and delighted her audience with many attractive selections.

Miss Elmer McDonald, who is a pupil of Earle Chester Smith, of the Atlanta Conservatory of Music, gave a lovely group of piano solos.

Miss Mary Townsend, one of the city's most accomplished violinists, proved a delight to the listeners with several lovely violin numbers.

Professor Wesley Peacock, of the Peacock School for Boys, gave an interesting talk on mental tests, illustrating how the child's mentality may be tested from the age of three months up to manhood. After his remarks he introduced to the audience the young boy of 10 years, known as a mental prodigy in this community, who is Arthur Gottesman, who is at this time a student at Oglethorpe university. Professor Peacock gave Arthur several mental tests, declaring that he had the mentality of a young man of almost 19.

Master Gottesman is a handsome youth and the women's club was delighted to introduce him to its members.

Mrs. Norman Sharp, president of the club, presided over the meeting and in her charming way introduced the speakers of the afternoon.

Before Mrs. Sharp was seated after making her few remarks, she was presented with a beautiful basket of gorgeous yellow chrysanthemums by Mrs. M. L. Thower, a popular member of the club.

Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, second vice president of the club, announced the bazaar to be given at the clubhouse during the early part of December. Mrs. Smith terms the bazaar as "A Gift of Talents," and as co-chairman of the committee on arrangements, expects to make it one of the attractive and at the same time the most remunerative affair the club has ever had. There will be, according to Mrs. Smith, 60 booths, arranged by the 60 chairmen of departments and divisions of the club, and it promises to be a marked success.

Gym Classes.
The president announced the opening of the gymnasium classes next Thursday and urged the club members to join the classes, which will be under the instruction of Miss Anna Thorn.

Mrs. Newton Wing, chairman of the club drive committee of the club, spoke for the community chest and urged the members to subscribe while present at the meeting, if they had not already done so.

Miss Tommie Barker, city librarian, invited the club women to visit the library and assist in celebrating the 25th anniversary of the library, which will be observed on the night of November 20.

The membership committee presented four new members to the club, who were received unanimously, as follows: Mrs. John H. Greene, Mrs. Ned Marshburn, Mrs. F. E. Lyon and Mrs. Paul Fleming.

Mrs. David Goldsmith, a guest in the city, en route to Florida for the winter months, was introduced to the club. Mrs. Goldsmith is a prominent member of the New York City club and will assist the Georgia club women in introducing to the New Yorkers the delicious Georgia yam sweet potato.

Mrs. Norman Sharp, president, was assisted in conducting the meeting by the first vice president, Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, who announced the reception in honor of the federation. The stage was beautifully arranged with baskets of white chrysanthemums and lovely palms. Several hundred club women heard the program of the afternoon.

Red Riding Hood

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

SYNOPSIS.
Mrs. Morgan Schuyler, one of New York's leading philanthropists and social lights, is answered by a girl evidently of birth and breeding. In spite of the fact that she admits a desire to hide her identity, Mrs. Schuyler accepts her on trust and tags her with the name of Hope Emerson.
Mrs. Schuyler's family consists of her mother, Mrs. Van Dorn; a young brother, Jim Van Dorn, and an older brother, Bertie, who is away from home.
The second morning of her employment Hope faints after receiving a mysterious telephone call. Mrs. Schuyler summons Dr. Horace Osborne. Hope tells the doctor she is employed during the afternoon hours on East 70th street. He offers to drive her there and patient is a boy of five years about whom the entire household mysteriously revolves: the closest guardian an uncle named Scarwenka. All of the members of this household are Van Dorns, a man of obvious importance, calls at the 70th street house. Hope disobeys the boy's way that night. Hope decides to call on Dr. Osborne for help. He accompanies her to the house, where the two conspirators find Van Dorn there before them. By a trick the colonel locks Hope and the doctor in the room with the child. They escape through a window, and take the child to a hospital.
The next morning Sally Wallis calls on Hope at the Schuylers. She tells the secretary about her hopeless love affair. The man in the case has just returned to New York after a long absence, and Sally learns he is ill in a sanatorium and facing a serious operation. Hope enlists the aid of Jim Van Dorn on Sally's behalf. He admits he loves Sally, and promises to keep his eye on her.
Late in the day Hope finds Colonel Vassil installed at the Scarwenkas, and learns that all the members of the household are leaving the country that night. The boy Alexandre, presents Hope with a valuable ring, and Vassil tells the girl that the child is destined to rule over a small European country.

INSTALLMENT L.

THE SANITARIUM

Dr. Osborne tried to speak lightly, but Hope saw he was seriously disturbed, and even Sally, convinced in the beginning that he was breaking up the party because her presence had spoiled it for him, finally decided to abandon the idea.
"I've got to go to the city hospital at once," he finished. "But I'll drop you anywhere you like, or you can leave me at the hospital and go on with the car."
Sally touched Hope's hand and the latter checked the suggestion she was about to make.

"Don't come up."

"We'll get right out here," Miss Wallis peremptorily announced. "We're nearer the place I'm going to, and I want Miss Emerson to go with me."

Osborne did not argue the point. His unflattering desire to get rid of them was obvious, for he was no dissembler. He stopped the car, and rousing himself with an effort to a sense of his social obligations, and assisted the two girls to the sidewalk. There he paused for no parting ceremonies, but absently raising his hat reentered the limousine and in another moment was lost to view in the traffic. Hope was conscious of a sensation of flatness. The brilliance of the day had lost its sparkle, and loneliness encompassed her, before she could analyze these phenomena Sally grasped her arm.

"Listen, Stella Maris," she said, earnestly, "you've got to do something for me. You've got to take me where I want to go. That's what this thing means—that I'm to have my chance. It's straight luck, and I always play my luck for all I'm worth."

She caught a passing taxicab by the elbow, as it seemed, and gave the driver and address as she scrambled into it. Hope followed, and when the taxicab started uptown Sally designed to explain.

"That's where the man is," she said, "the man I told you about. It's a private sanatorium, and I've been camping on the doorstep, but they wouldn't let me see him. They say they won't let any one in, but I know better. It's because they think I'm just a kid and might make a fuss. So at last," she added defiantly, "I got chummy with his valet."

"Sally, you didn't!"

"Oh, yes, I did. It was worth while, too. He's a wise little guy, and he's going to let me in. He has promised. I arranged to go tonight, after shaking you and Jim. But it will look a whole lot better to go in broad daylight, with a perfectly good chaperon. Then the valet won't have time to get cold feet. Besides, I can wait."

"Sally, what will I do with you?" Hope spoke almost despairingly.

"If you're wise, you'll do what I ask. If you don't, I'll go alone tonight. Good heavens," Sally fiercely broke out, "what difference does it make? All I want to do is to go and look at the man—to see him with my own eyes and to know how he is! Is there anything catatonic in that?"

"But, child, he doesn't want to see you. You said so yourself," her companion pointed out.

"He isn't going to," Sally muttered grimly. "It's understood that I can't see him unless he's asleep. He's in a sort of stupor most of the time, though he always rouses up if any one speaks to him. But I'm not going to speak. I've promised. I'm just going to creep in and look at him, and creep out again. That's the bargain. And what's the harm in it?" she ended, desperately.

Hope reflected. She knew Sally would make good her threat and go alone if her companion refused to go with her. On the other hand, could she be trusted not to go to pieces when she got there?

"Will you give me your word not to make a scene if I take you?" she asked at last.

Sally gave promptly, and for some reason, though she could not have explained the feeling, Hope was sure the promise would be kept. Nevertheless, she looked at Sally anxiously. Her point won, the girl was in a state of high emotional tension. She sat on the extreme edge of her seat as if to hasten the speeding taxicab, and her breath came quickly. Hope laid a hand on her shoulder.

"Keep steady," she advised. "They won't let you in, you know, if you look like that."

Sally moved impatiently under the hand, but the warning had reached her and she made an obvious effort to pull herself together. When they arrived at the sanatorium, one of a row of brown stone houses that appeared to be private residences, she preceded Hope up the steps to the front door, rang the bell with a steady hand, and upon the opening of the door entered the hall with cool assurance.

"I want to inquire about one of the patients," she said, smiling at the maid.

"Will just go upstairs and speak to his valet."

"Yes, miss." But the servant hesitated. The valet said you were coming tonight," she reminded the caller.

"I know. But my friend can't come with me then, and, of course, I didn't want to come alone if I could help it. There's no one up there now, is there?"

Sally was moving resolutely toward the staircase as she spoke, and the maid hurried after her. All this was most irregular; still, a few hours might not make any difference. Hope followed the two more slowly.

"No, miss, there's no one now but the nurse and the valet," the maid said, "though there's been several folks in and out today."

Sally turned to direct a backward look at Hope, and the secretary caught its significance. If, indeed, there were folks in and out all day, it did not seem that one additional call would make much difference.

Sally was on the stairs.

"Don't come up," she sweetly advised the maid. "You must get awfully tired running up and down, and I know the way. It's the second door to the right, isn't it?"

She had reached the top landing and now, without waiting for a reply, she disappeared from the maid's view. The girl shrugged and philosophically returned to her post in the rear of the hall, where a chair and an evening newspaper lightened her vigil. Hope kept close to Sally's heels, and was just beside her when the flapper knocked on the panel of the second door to the right.

It opened almost immediately but only an inch or two, and as the servant who held it thus guardedly recognized one of his visitors he showed a prompt disposition to close it again. Sally met this by unostentatiously slipping a suede pump through the narrow opening.

"I had to come now, Perkins," she urgently whispered, "and to bring a friend. It's all right."

Something slipped from her hand to his, and the face of the servant became somewhat wooden. Also the door opened a little wider. But he spoke in a warning tone.

"Very well, miss. You can come in. But you're not to stay more than a minute or two, and you're not to speak a word. That's quite understood, miss, isn't it?"

Sally nodded. She could not have spoken if she tried. She was following the man across the threshold and into what was obviously a small private sitting room. It was empty. At the far end of it a door opened into a bedroom.

Sally stole toward this second door like a shadow, and Hope, with an unexpected catch of sympathy in her throat, kept beside her. She trusted Sally, but she would not let the girl out of her sight or have her more than an arm's length away. Sally's flesh might be weaker than Sally's spirit.

They entered a dim room in which heavy drawn curtains, shutting out the light billowed gently in the breeze passing through the windows lowered at the top. Beside the bed a white capped nurse sat with her back to the door, and in the bed lay a large, thin man, who oddly suggested great strength even in his helplessness, lay with closed eyes.

THE PIPES OF PANHANDLE.

By Arthur L. Lippmann.

I'm a singer of ditties in hamlets and cities.

By tinkling and twinkling old streams.

I woo all the muses on vagabond cruises—

A creature of fancies and dreams. I've a light, lyric lilt which I never tire

Of thumping and strumming all day—

On subjects quite tender I vocally render

A carol of sweet roundelay.

Oh, I'm blithe and I'm merry—no elfin or fairy

So joyfully welcomes the dawn. And I worship the night with a hymn

Of delight.

—In the haunt of the pheasant and faun.

My pipes and my tabors entrance all my neighbors:

I never feel mournful or glum—

So, perhaps by this time you've inferred from my rhyme

I'm a standardized hobo, or bum!

A Matter of Interpretation.

He was a newly-promoted corporal in the A. E. F. and had change of a squad occupying an old, ramshackle building. In the dead of night, a messenger arrived with an order which mystified him. It read: "G. H. Q. wants house."

Not knowing what "G. H. Q." signified, the corporal sent back the following reply: "G. H. Q. can G. T. H."

When headquarters received this message, the corporal was immediately ordered arrested and held for court-martial. He was charged with using insulting language. At his trial he was ordered to interpret the offending message.

General Headquarters can Get

The House," he explained.

Lenore: "Yes."
